BRITISH REMOVE ANDALSNESE TROOPS

Nazis Are Driven Back by Norse

Defenders Force Foes Southward

German Troops Retreat to Protect Supply Lines; Norse Are Given Help

Stockholm, May 2 (P)—Norwegian troops strengthened by foreign volunteers, were reported today moving west from the Swedish frontier and south through the Glomma River Valley as German forces fell back from their advance posts to protect their supply lines in central Norway.

The Norwegians' occupation of Roros, point of the Nazis' furthest advance in the Glomma River Valley, and Tynset, 25 miles south of Roros, after the Germans had withdrawn apparently has prevented the Germans from linking their northern and southern forces, at least temporarily, along this route.

Roros is 195 miles north of Oslo.

Norwegians were noncommittal as to the nationality of the foreign volunteers aiding them, but reports have told of numerous Swedes crossing the border to fight the Germans.

While the guerrilla tactics of re-organized Norwegian forces were harassing the sketchy Nazi line, a new British sea and air offensive to halt the flow of German troops into Norway appeared to be taking shape.

Still Hold Kvike

Latest reports indicated that the Germans still held Kvike, west of the Glomma Valley and northeast of Dombas, where allied forces still are said to be struggling to check the German drive.

Dombas controls an important railroad junction in the Gudbrands Valley, another route of the German effort to establish a land connection between Nazi forces at Oslo and Trondheim.

Observers on Sweden's west coast said that British warships, reinforced by bombing planes, invaded the Kattegat yesterday and fought a two-hour battle with German naval vessels during which one Nazi ship was sunk and another set afire.

Word of the naval engagement coincided with Norwegian dispatches asserting that the Germans, unable to maintain their thinly drawn lines of communication in the strategically important Glomma River Valley, had withdrawn southward some 35 miles, presumably to await reinforcements.

Beaten at Otta
A Norwegian commune also declared the Germans had suffered a defeat at Otta in the parallel Gudbrands Valley 20 miles south of the Dombas railway junction and had fallen back with "heavy losses."

Norwegian accounts of the German withdrawal in the Glomma Valley indicated a severance of communications between Oslo and Trondheim, establishment of which Berlin announced earlier in the week after reports of sweeping successes.

A captured Nazi officer was quoted as saying that the withdrawal was necessitated by a lack of reinforcements.

Women Hear Plea

National League of Voters Is Asked to Promote American Accord

New York, May 2 (P)—The convention of the National League of women voters heard a suggestion today that it promote inter-American relations and cooperate with world organizations in attempts to solve social and economic problems.

Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright, board member from Chicago, told the league in a prepared address: "We are faced definitely with the realities of the war both to the east and to the west. We in the league in making our program now have to decide on the direction we want to see American foreign policy take during the next two years and in the future, when the war is ended."

Mrs. Wright said "we still must continue to consider long range objectives, although we have to make crucial decisions now on what we will do in a world gone mad."

Ulster's Apple Blossom Queen and Her Court

4,000 Women Pour Into Capital for Democrats' Parley

Serious Housing Problem Arises as Ladies Come for First National Government Study

Washington, May 2 (P)—More than four thousand Democratic women poured into town today, and the capital woke up to find a serious housing problem on its hands.

The ladies came to attend the first national institute of government under the auspices of the women's division of the Democratic national committee—and they came in unsuspected numbers.

Originally, about 500 were expected, but after that the advance registration skyrocketed to 4,700.

Faced with the fact that the hotels may not be able to accommodate all the women, the national committee hastily figured out a doubling-up program.

Members of the District of Columbia Democratic Club promised to open up their hearts and homes if any of the visitors are without shelter by sundown.

The housing crisis was by no means settled when Postmaster Farley, in a prepared address for the institute's opening session, felicitated the women on the part they have played in the party's activities since 1932.

Praising the record of the Roosevelt administration, he said: "The Republican party has just paid us a great compliment. Being unable to work out a program of their own, they propose to appropriate what they like to call 'the best features' of the Democratic program."

"We propose to keep that program for ourselves. To borrow a phrase from the current war dispatches, we are deeply suspicious of Trojan horses and, I may add, the American public is likewise suspicious. The Republican effort to slip into power by donning the cloak of liberalism, a garment which has always been ill-fitting for the G. O. P., is too apparent to fool anyone."

Other cabinet members and high government officials are on the program, and President Roosevelt will address the women during a White House garden party tomorrow.

Virginia Hoffman, 16 Chosen County Queen For Valley's Festival

Kingston High Junior Becomes Third Winner From Local School and Is Third Blonde; Miss Mackey Wins for Volunteer Firemen

Competing against 18 beautiful girls from the various sections of Ulster county, Miss Virginia Hoffman, 16-year-old blonde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hoffman, of 143 Fair street, was chosen as the queen of the Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival last night at the municipal auditorium.

She is the third Kingston High School girl (and the third blonde) to receive the honor in as many years, last year's queen having been Joan Craig and in 1938 Miss Jane Ball, now in the cast of the musical show "Higher and Higher," playing in New York.

Miss Hoffman was chosen queen in the beauty parade held after the amateur show, sponsored by Kingston Post, American Legion, and now is the representative of Ulster county in the contest to be held May 11 for the selection of the Hudson Valley Apple Blossom queen.

Judges for last night's beauty parade were Mrs. F. J. Wright of Pearl River, N. Y.; Dr. John M. Kerrigan of Wappingers Falls and Jacob A. Decker of Newburgh.

Business Men Expect Crowd

Matters Vital to Citizens Will Be Discussed at Evening Session

An evening meeting of the Up-town Business Men's Association at Hotel Stuyvesant at 8 o'clock this evening at which one way streets, parking meters and other traffic regulations will be discussed, is expected to bring out one of the largest attendances in years. President Louis Weiner will also bring other important business matters before the meeting if time permits.

The large attendance at the April morning meeting when traffic matters were under discussion prompted Mr. Weiner to arrange for the evening meeting in May in order that all merchants might have an opportunity to voice their opinion. Despite the importance of the business to be transacted some of the merchants could not attend a morning meeting of the association today and suggested the evening date.

At 8 o'clock this evening the meeting will be called to order and after the business has been disposed of there will be a buffet lunch served to those members who desire to remain. A large number of reservations have been received.

W.P.A. Asks Greater Leeway in Picking Type of Work to Classify as Relief

Washington, May 2 (P)—The WPA has asked Congress, well-informed legislators said today, to give it greater leeway in the size and type of projects which it can undertake with relief funds.

Members of the House appropriations sub-committee considering President Roosevelt's relief estimates said that the requested revisions included: Restoration of the federal theater projects where local sponsorship can be obtained.

Removal of the $52,000 limit on the cost of construction projects. Elimination of the requirement that local sponsors contribute 25 per cent of the cost of all non-federal projects.

Reduction to 15 days of the enforced lay-off period for all persons continuously on the WPA rolls for 18 months.

Committee members said WPA Commissioner Harrington, recom-

Work May Start In June on New County Buildings

Expect Matter of Costs and the Advisability of Doing Work Will Be Presented to Board

Work on alterations of the building adjoining the county clerk's office on Main street, which was purchased along with the Eagle Hotel building property by the county of Ulster, will probably be started in June. It is planned to make the building suitable for use of the Motor Vehicle Bureau offices, which are now located on Fair street, and also to use the upper floors of the building for county office purposes.

There probably will be no work done on the building until after the next meeting of the board of supervisors, which will be held late this month. It is planned to secure figures and estimates as to the remodeling costs of the four-story building, a part of the Eagle Hotel, which stands between the old Eagle Hotel building and the brick addition to the west, which it is planned to use for the Motor Vehicle Bureau offices. This four-story building is in good condition and could be used for offices is the cost of remodeling is not too great.

Pius Blames Strife Upon Blind Greed

Covetousness and Thirst for Power Are Listed by Pontiff as Causes of Conflict

Two Canonized

Pius XII Approves First Saints Under His Rule at St. Peter's

Vatican City, May 2 (P)—Pope Pius XII blamed "excessive human covetousness and thirst for power" for the war in Europe in speaking briefly at St. Peter's today at the canonization of two saints.

Men, blinded by these passions, have "repudiated the laws of God" in losing the horrors of war, he said.

In approving the canonization of the two saints, the Pope appealed to them to intercede with God on behalf of mankind for the restoration of unity, concord and "the counsels of peace."

A French Nun and a humble Italian girl—the first persons to be canonized by Pope Pius XII—attained sainthood today at solemn ceremonies in St. Peter's.

The sainted women were Marie Euphrasia Pelletier, who founded the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, and Gemma Galgani, who was noted for her reported stigmata, or marks corresponding to the wounds that Christ received when crucified.

The canonizations preceded a series of beautifications, preliminary steps toward sainthood, for five other persons which will take place during the next two months. Among the beautifications will be that May 12 of another French Nun, Mother Philippine Ross Duchesne. She introduced the Society of the Sacred Heart in the United States and died at St. Charles, Mo.

Church Sparkles

The great church of St. Peter's sparkled with the brilliance of thousands of electric candles for today's ceremony. Twelve thousand lights glistened in 600 chandeliers especially hung in the nave, while other thousands shone from 170 immense candelabra.

Thousands of nuns, priests and laymen crowded the basilica to see the Pope enter on the sedia gestatoria, or portable throne. Six silver trumpets heralded the approach of the pontifical procession, in which marched cardinals, bishops and uniformed officers of the Papal Guards.

Seated on a throne near the central altar, the Pope was approached by a cardinal and two other priests who thrice petitioned

Greece Calls Up 10 Classes of Reserves

Athens, May 2 (P)—Greece today called up 10 classes of reserve army officers for active service as tension increased over Italy's possible plans in the Mediterranean.

The officers were ordered to report on duty May 5. The call to the colors followed a May Day speech by Premier John Metaxas declaring Greece is "strong and united in this most formidable of all wars, which will decide the destinies of mankind for many centuries."

Speaking at Piraeus, Metaxas disclosed the government was negotiating with "a great friendly power" which is engaging great numbers of unemployed Greek workmen.

Although Metaxas failed to identify the nation, informed quarters said it was France who wanted thousands of Greeks to work in French war industries, in the mines and on farms.

German War Chest $200,000,000; Gains With Danish Cash

U. S. Figures Give Credit for Only 29 Millions in Gold, but War Has Boosted It

Washington, May 2 (P)—Germany's secret "war chest," fortified by acquisition of convertible assets in Denmark and Norway, now totals more than $200,000,000, on the basis of estimates by American officials charting the economics of the European war.

The Federal Reserve Bank's figures credit the third reich with only $29,000,000 in gold, but that total has not varied since December, 1937, and officials do not doubt the existence of far greater unreported reserves.

The exact amount of gold and convertible assets Germany may have gained in Denmark and Norway is not yet known to American economists. At the time of Hitler's lightning thrust into Scandinavia, Norway reported $51,000,000 in gold reserves, and Denmark has $53,000,000.

Financial authorities pointed out, however, that both nations reportedly had sent large consignments of gold to London for safe-keeping just prior to the German invasion. Norway also shipped $33,000,000 of the metal to the United States during January and February.

President Roosevelt's executive order, meanwhile, has "frozen" Danish and Norwegian assets in this country, preventing their transfer to Copenhagen or Oslo where they might fall into German hands. Preliminary estimates place Norwegian holdings here at $88,000,000 and Danish at $51,000,000.

A large part of Germany's gold resources is believed to have come

Campaign Fails Near Trondheim

Chamberlain, Making Statement, Says Anglo Forces Will Continue Fighting

Won't Be Trapped

Empire Will Not Become Victim of Trick in Mediterranean

London, May 2 (P)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today disclosed the withdrawal of British troops from the Andalsnes area, abandoning the attempt to take German-held Trondheim from the south, but declared Britain would keep on fighting Germany in Norway and refused to be trapped into letting down her guard in the Mediterranean.

"We have no intention of allowing Norway to become merely a side show," Chamberlain told the House of Commons, "but neither are we going to be trapped into such a dispersal of our forces as would leave us dangerously weak at the vital center."

He asserted that blows to the German fleet permitted "an important redistribution of the main allied fleets," and announced a British-French battle fleet is in the eastern Mediterranean on the way to Alexandria, Egypt.

Second Report

Chamberlain's statement was his second report on the Norwegian campaign but he made it clear at the outset it was only an interim report, that there was much he could not say for fear of disclosing strategy to the Germans, and announced a debate in the House of Commons on the campaign would be held next Tuesday.

Chamberlain's announcement indicated the allies were abandoning to Germany all Norway south of a line running from Trondheim last to the Swedish frontier including nearly half the country's total area, six-sevenths of the population and nearly all industrial centers.

Today's German high command communique indicated that Norwegian troops had been in action on the Andalsnes front covering the British withdrawal. Large contingents of Norwegians were reported surrendering, apparently when this covering action was completed.

The prime minister promised further disclosures next Tuesday, insisting that more information now would merely help Germany and endanger lives of British fighting men.

He did not amplify his statement that an allied battle fleet was in the eastern Mediterranean, but British this week has given evidence of anxiety over the possibility of Italy entering the war on the side of Germany by forbidding her merchant marine to use the Mediterranean for through voyages.

Prepared for Invasion

Chamberlain pictured Germany as prepared for invasion of the Netherlands or Belgium, or both, action he said "would not scruple" to undertake.

"Or it may be that their savage hordes will be hurled against southeast Europe."

"They might well do more than one of these things in preparation for an attempt at a large scale

Ship Brings Men

Panama Is Due Saturday With 78 Sailors From Wrecked Steamer

New York, May 2 (P)—The Panama Lines flagship Panama is due in New York Saturday with most of the 78-member crew of the smashed British steamer Matakana which ran ashore Mayaguan Island near the windward passage between Cuba and Haiti.

A wireless message from Capt. Eric J. Erickson of the Panama told of the rescue after the Panama answered the stricken vessel's plea for aid.

The 8,048-ton Matakana, laden with frozen beef destined for the British Isles, reported running aground, probably in heavy seas, at 6:40 a. m. (EST) yesterday.

The Panama Lines' port captain in New York said presumably all members of the British ship's crew were saved, adding that the captain, chief officer and chief engineer had remained on the island with a week's food supply. Two of the crew suffered broken legs.

Financial and Commercial

Commodities and
Stocks Were Down

Both stocks and commodities headed downward yesterday. One explanation of the fall in security prices, with 50 stocks on the New York Exchange making new lows for the year, is the old one of the pressure of international developments, with special reference to German claims of successes in Norway and the action of Britain in regard to shipping in the Mediterranean. Against this is the fact that wheat led grains downward, as the tendency of spread of war is to enhance the value of wheat. Among stocks showing losses of one to two points were some of the market leaders. Among those outstandingly weak, which under unexplained selling showed a loss of 2 1/2 points for the day, was Montgomery Ward. International Nickel also went into new low ground and U. S. Steel was off 1 1/4 points.

In the Dow-Jones averages industrial opened over half a point below Tuesday's close and declined steadily throughout the day, to close at 147.13, lowest level of the day and a net loss for the session of 1.30 points. Ralls had a net loss of 17, to 30.52, and utilities were off 28, to 24.82. Volume was 806,250 shares.

Major commodities followed the lead of grains and declined after early steadiness, the Dow-Jones index losing 44 point for the day. Wheat at Chicago went to the lowest point since the invasion of Scandinavia began on April 9, lost as much as three cents a bushel at one time, and the close showed futures down 1 1/4 to 2 1/4 cents a bushel. Hide futures, under speculative selling, lost 20 to 25 points. Spot raw sugar declined four points, to 2.81 cents a pound. Silk and coffee were exceptions to the general downward trend.

Foreign markets were lower. London was affected by the British decision to avoid merchant shipping in the Mediterranean and both industrial and rail averages were down. Allies' reverses in Norway depressed prices at Amsterdam and domestic issues showed net losses up to eight points, with the close slightly above the lows for the day. Paris Bourse was tense, with a fair amount of selling and domestic and foreign lists showing losses of two to four per cent.

Bond prices were mixed, with speculative issues lower. U. S. Treasuries were firmer.

Report of International Paper & Power for the first quarter of 1940 shows sharp gains over a year ago. Net for the three months is about $2,900,000, compared with net in the initial quarter of 1939 of $2,428, according to President Cullen.

Quarterly reports include: Holland Furnace, net loss of $119,241, vs. $158,644 in 1939 quarter. Crosey Corp., net of $42,807, or eight cents a share, vs. net of $208,916, or 38 cents a share year ago. Gannett Co., net of $223,510, vs. $162,538. New York Telephone Co., net of $9,008,454, vs. $8,078,176 in the 1939 quarter.

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—Under leadership of steel, selected stocks put on a quiet rally in today's market.

While there was a handful of gains running to 2 points, the comeback generally was in small fractions. Top quotations were reduced in many cases near the final hour. Extremely slow intervals were numerous. Transfers for the full session were at the rate of approximately 700,000 shares.

Conflicting European war dispatches continued as a speculative handicap, brokers said, but signs of more stubborn resistance by the allies in Norway helped stiffen Wall Street sentiment. Business news still was hopeful in spots and served to minimize selling.

Bonds were selectively improved and commodities a trifle mixed. London and Paris markets were a bit better. Amsterdam was in recess for a holiday.

Stocks favored the greater part of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, United Aircraft, Sperry, Pan American Airways, American-Hawaiian Steamship, Loft, American Bosch, U. S. Rubber, Westinghouse, Great Northern, Caterpillar Tractor and Kennecott.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause sagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent uric acid passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

of supplies and adequate reinforcements.

The full significance of the German withdrawal in the Glomma Valley was obscured by conflicting information concerning developments in the Gudbrands Valley to the west.

If the Germans have control of the railway line extending northward through the Gudbrands Valley, through Dombas and Støren to Trondheim, their retreat from Roros is not strategically important.

If, however, the British and their Norwegian allies still hold Dombas the German force at Trondheim still is isolated from Oslo so far as land communications are concerned.

British headquarters in Norway not only denied that Dombas had been relinquished to the Germans but said that the allied position there had been strengthened by the arrival of fairly heavy artillery.

Proposals Face Defeat

Washington, May 2 (AP)—Repeated House votes against sweeping wage-hour amendments led New Deal members to express belief today that they would have a good chance of defeating far-reaching proposals to revise the Wagner Labor Act. Five days of wage-hour arguments, it was learned, have caused them to soft pedal their campaign to prevent the Wagner Act controversy from coming before the House.

him to declare the blessed pair saints.

On the third request, the Pope rose, put on his three-tiered crown and pronounced in Latin the words that created Saint Marie Euphrasia and Saint Gemma. After Mass the Pope bestowed his apostolic blessing on the congregation, the trumpets sounded and he was borne to his apartments.

Born in 1796

Marie Euphrasia Pelletier was born in 1796 at Noirmoutier, France, and joined the order of "Our Lady of the Charity of the Refuge" at 18. Some years later she was superior of the house at Tours, then founded a chapter at Angers and petitioned the Pope to make it the motherhouse of the whole order.

She was accused of disobedience, ambition and innovations, and although upheld by the Pope was forced to found a new order, the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, which spread throughout the world and was introduced in the United States in 1843. She died in 1868.

Gemma Galgani, the daughter of a pharmacist, was born in Lucca, Italy, in 1878, and was reported to have had heavenly visions as a child. Her biographers relate that the stigmata appeared in her side, hands and forehead in 1899. She died in 1903, and has been known since as the Virgin of Lucca.

Both women were beatified by Pope Pius XI in 1933 on the basis of healings attributed to their intercession.

Ante Is Raised

Atlanta, May 2 (AP)—A telegraphic offer to add "one thousand dollars" to the reward for a kidnaper of Adolf Hitler was dispatched today by A. L. Henson, past department commander of the Georgia American Legion, to Samuel Harden Church of the Carnegie Institute.

Reles Tells How Great Was Profit

New York, May 2 (AP)—Albino (Kid Twist) Reles, 34-year-old alleged leader of Murder, Inc., was quoted by District Attorney William O'Dwyer's office today as disclosing that the killers-for-hire syndicate committed at least 63 murders and grossed about $500,000 a year.

The mob's income, according to Reles, was chiefly built on underworld assassinations, bolstered by petty rackets and jewel robberies in Florida carried out by members of the ring "on their vacations."

O'Dwyer's office said Reles, who turned informer in the hope of escaping the electric chair, acknowledged that he and Harry (Happy) Malone received the biggest share of the gang's profits.

Reles is expected to be the state's major witness next week in the trial of Malone, Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss and Frank (the Dasher) Abbadando for the ice-pick slaying of George Rudnick, a police informer, who was stabbed 34 times in a Brooklyn garage in 1937.

Meanwhile, Max (Little Larney) Ludkowitz, 32, appeared in the Manhattan police lineup charged with suspicion of homicide in the murder of Henry (Knockout) Halperin, a Brooklyn gangster, on February 8, 1937.

The prisoner, arrested yesterday at the direction of Special Assistant Attorney General John Harlan Amen, denied knowledge of the Halperin slaying, but admitted part ownership of a $25,000 15-room house near Monticello, N. Y., which reportedly was used as the headquarters for underworld figures.

Use Is Prohibited

Methodists Ask Taylor's Recall

Atlantic City, N. J., May 2 (AP)—The general conference of the Methodist Church today formally asked President Roosevelt to recall Myron C. Taylor, his personal envoy to the Vatican.

"His appointment," the official pronouncement read, "has created a spirit of uneasiness and resentment in the minds of a great number of people, and instead of promoting peace has engendered discord and strife, which seems calamitous at this time when there is imperative need for harmonious united action on the part of all those who fear God and love righteousness."

This statement, approved with only a few hands among 776 conference delegates raised in opposition, was drafted by the Methodist Church's committee on interdenominational relations, headed by Dr. James W. Moore of Newport News, Va.

It passed over vigorous protests by several delegates who said "this is no time to stir up religious hatreds."

Church Is Guarded

Pittsburgh, May 2 (AP)—A plainclothes patrolman was stationed today at the home of Dr. Samuel Harden Church, 82-year-old president of Carnegie Institute, who offered a $1,000,000 reward on behalf of unnamed Pittsburghers for the capture of Adolf Hitler, German chancellor. Police Inspector Edward J. Brophy said the guard was established at the request of Dr. Church's son who expressed fear for his father's safety because he lived alone. Brophy said the son asserted, however, there had been no threats against his father.

attack on the western front or even a lightning swoop on this country.

In announcing the abandonment of the west Norwegian base of Andalsnes, Chamberlain said: "We have now withdrawn the whole of our forces from Andalsnes under the very noses of German planes without, so far as I am aware, losing a single man in this operation."

He said the Norwegian campaign has "merely concluded a single phase" in which neither Britain nor Germany thus far has achieved their objectives and "their (the German) losses were far greater than ours."

"German losses in men cannot be estimated but they must have amounted to many thousands."

House Is Silent

The crowded House received Chamberlain's report in comparative silence. Many members appeared to be stunned by its implications.

The German high command earlier in the day had reported its troops within 25 miles of Andalsnes and said opposing forces were in "head over heels" flight.

Chamberlain said "German local air superiority" had made it impossible to land "the artillery and tanks which would be necessary to enable our troops to withstand the enemy drive from the south."

He said the troops were withdrawn "under the very noses of the German airplanes" without the loss of "a single man."

Chamberlain assured the House

Britain has "no intention of allowing Norway to become merely a side show."

He Must Pay

New York, May 2 (AP)—A Supreme Court referee ruled today that the "sins" of a son-in-law shall not be visited on his wife's parents. Referee John Ford recommended that Herbert L. Nichols, Jr., adopted son of a wealthy retired Greenwich, Conn., banker, pay alimony to his wife, Hope Rider Nichols. Mrs. Nichols, seeking an uncontested divorce, said she didn't want any alimony. But her parents did.

INDIANS IN OUR WORLD

Delegates from the 21 American republics attended the recent Inter-American Congress on Indians, at Patzcuraro, Mexico. Ten days were given to study of Indian problems. The foundation of an inter-American institute for Indian studies and a permanent committee to direct them was the principal achievement of the meetings.

Resolutions adopted by the Congress included a proposal to help Indians, in countries where they lack free access to the land, to get farms, credit and technical help. It was agreed that Indian customs and special circumstances affecting Indians should be considered in applying laws to them and that Indian women should have the same rights as men where ownership of properties is concerned.

It was suggested that a "day of the Indian" should be celebrated throughout the American continents and special stamps issued for it.

In this connection it is pleasant to learn from Oliver La Farge's book about the North American Indian, "As Long as the Grass Shall Grow," that the treatment of this minority group in the United States has improved in recent years. It must be admitted that the white man has done great injustice to the natives of North and South America. It is too late for complete restitution, but a good time, surely, to push an enlightened and civilized program to promote the welfare and recognize the rights of these citizens.

MORE FLEXIBLE WPA

The best news printed about the WPA for quite a while was the statement from Col. F. C. Harrington, commissioner of public works at Washington, that 1,250,000 workers had left the WPA rolls voluntarily in the last 12 months. They are said to be leaving now at the rate of 100,000 a month.

This statement made a pretty good introduction for National Employment Week, proclaimed for the first seven days of May.

It is admitted that when a WPA worker leaves for private employment, his departure isn't always permanent. People tend to return when private jobs fail again. But it is reassuring to find that the WPA apparently has become flexible enough to expand and contract readily with the changing market for labor.

The public for some time feared that people once on the government payroll would never get off. Now if the WPA can operate in this flexible way right along, thus serving the purpose it was supposed to serve, there will be less prejudice against it.

SCHOOL FORESTS

An unusual class gift was that of the seniors of Southern Illinois Normal University. They presented the school with two acres of wooded land a quarter of a mile from the campus. The tract will be kept wooded and will be used for research and study by the zoology, botany and agriculture departments of the university. If it is suitable for picnics, it may also serve recreational purposes.

The class wasn't able to scrape up quite all the money needed for purchase of the land, but local business men and a retired minister chipped in. They knew a good idea when they saw one.

The gift shows originality plus appreciation of the value of permanent woodland. Other educational institutions not already owning woods might well follow this example. Forest-conscious students can be a useful addition to the conservation ranks.

DESTRUCTION OR PARTNERSHIP?

Any American who heard the recent speech of Mr. Duff-Cooper, former head of the British Admiralty, must have been impressed with his stern and almost ferocious attitude toward Germany. And that attitude was echoed by his audience.

There was no hint of conciliation. And there was no limiting of the blame for Nazi crimes merely to Hitler and his group. The speaker declared, to an accompaniment of echoing cheers, that the Hitler group in control of the government and the German people themselves were one, and equally guilty, and must pay an equal penalty for their crimes against peace and civilization.

It seems clear that if the Allies win, and this present mood holds, the penalty will be far more severe than was the Peace of Versailles. Germany may be torn to pieces.

Yet against this attitude is the dream of a federated Europe, as the only remedy for these military and economic wars. It was talked of by the present British government itself early in the war, and was set forth eloquently just the other day by Jacques Maritain, French author and philosopher. He opposes dismemberment of Germany and maintains that a free union is imperative.

There will be plenty of time, perhaps, to argue the relative merits of these opposing plans, before the war ends. Mr. Maritain's hope of federation, to be acquiesced in by the German nation, is based on his hope of the younger generation of Germans rising above Nazi ideals.

GREAT LAKES CRUISE

The most traveling President is said to be planning something new for June. Returning from a western tour by rail, he would board a vessel at Duluth, outlet for the world's greatest iron ore deposits, and go by water via Lakes Superior, Huron and Erie to Buffalo, a trip of nearly 1,200 miles through the world's largest fresh water lakes.

The purpose might be about half recreation and half publicity for the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway. If the latter motive is dominant, the President might be expected to finish the job by continuing through Lake Ontario and on down the St. Lawrence to the head of deep-sea navigation at Montreal. That is where the proposed international locks will be built, and the new channels dug, if the American President and the Canadian Premier can both persuade their federal lawmakers to approve the job.

Some spoil-sports, however, are saying now that it's going to be safer for the cities, ships and iron of the Great Lakes if the St. Lawrence is left too shallow for submerged U-boats to get through.

Cicero said it once for all, 2,000 years ago: "O tempora, O mores!" Meaning it's a cockeyed world.

FOOD MAY NOT INCREASE WEIGHT

When an overweight consults his physician for advice as to a safe method of reducing weight, a thorough examination is given to make sure that the heart is sound, or sound enough to withstand a reduced diet with the addition of a little more exercise daily. This enables the patient to reduce weight gradually without danger of shock or collapse which might discourage him (or her) from continuing on the reducing diet.

Unfortunately, when an adult underweight consults his physician and asks him for a diet to increase weight, the physician may simply name the principal fat and starch foods and advise that they be eaten in abundance. No physical or dental examination is made.

It may happen that the reason for being below normal weight is that some infection is present—infected teeth, tonsils, sinuses—which pulls down body tissue, preventing normal gain in weight. If underweights would consult their physician and dentists for examination for defects before going on an upbuilding diet, there would be fewer disappointments.

However, infection is only one cause of underweight. Not getting enough rest or sleep is a greater factor in preventing gain in weight than is not eating enough food.

The individual who does not rest or sleep enough is usually the same individual who eats hurriedly and "has something on his mind" when he does eat. This is particularly true about breakfast when a very light breakfast is hurriedly eaten and a dash made for a street car, bus, or motor to get down to work on time. This light breakfast and hurry to work means that there is no time to go to stool after breakfast and constipation is very often the result. Constipation prevents gain in weight.

Another habit or mistake of underweights, in addition to hurry at meal time, is the irregularity of their meals, to which is added the fact that a light meal may be eaten leisurely and a heavy meal hurriedly. Hurry can prevent proper digestion and absorption of the food into the blood. As underweights are usually of the small-boned, slender type, their small intestine is not as long as in the normal or heavy type and food eaten may get to the end of the small intestine's absorbing surface without being absorbed.

I have not outlined any diet to increase weight as I am only trying to point out a few reasons why some underweights do not increase in weight despite their increased intake of starch and fat foods.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Basketball was a popular sport in 1900 in Kingston, and one of the best teams that trod the boards in those early days was one representing the old Four-teenth Separate Company who staged their games in the old state armory, now the municipal auditorium, on Broadway.

The basketball squad of the soldiers was made up of George W. Wachmeyer, Edward Cashin, William Zeigler, Anderson Lawton, Walter Deyo and Charles Derenbacher. In some of the games the squad was strengthened with the addition of Toby Matthews, one of the star basketball players of Newburgh at that period.

The local soldiers were coached by Sandy Shields of New York City. During the winter of 1899, 1900, the soldiers played a number of strong teams from other cities, and ended the season with a sizeable string of victories to their credit.

One of the leading musicians of Kingston at the turn of the century was Prof. Emanuel Ellis, who composed the music to a number of popular songs. His latest hit in January, 1900, was a characteristic country dance, "Whoa! Gee Whiz," the words of which were from the facile pen of Wallie Becker, well known newspaper reporter, and the author of a number of popular songs at the turn of the century.

It was in the early 1900's that professional minstrel shows trod the boards of the local opera houses. At that time Kingston boasted two, the old Kingston Opera House and Liscomb's Opera House on lower Broadway, now remodeled into the Orpheum Theatre where popular movies are now shown. The Kingston Opera House building some years ago was remodeled into stores on the ground floor with offices on the second floor.

One of the most popular minstrel men with Kingston audiences was Hi Henry, who played the Kingston Opera House in January, 1900. Another minstrel man who was a decided favorite was Lew Dockstader, who was one of the best known endmen in the world. Lew had many Kingston friends and it was his custom to have several of them, including Wallie Becker, meet with him in his hotel room before the evening performance, and tell him some of the local jokes.

Later that night Lew would keep his audience convulsed with his local hits. Lew's local allusions, however, were of the sort that did not leave an unpleasant sting behind, and the victim did not become sore.

Other professional minstrel stars whose names come readily to mind are Primrose and West, who played Kingston many times.

Other minstrel troupes were Gus Sun's Minstrels and the San Francisco Minstrels.

Naturally with professional minstrel shows proving such a drawing card amateur minstrels were all the rage, and some of the well known amateur minstrel men of that era will be recalled in future sketches.

Cows and Cowslips
Washington—There's discrimination somewhere—Uncle Sam will patent plants but he won't patent animals. An aspiring Burbank who crossbreeds a new swine or a species of sugar cane that gives better molasses can cash in on the fruits of his labor. But the livestock breeder who crossbreeds animals and eventually stabilizes a new breed—such as milking Shorthorn cattle, the Boston bull terrier—is out of luck. The reason? Nobody ever tried to patent an animal. Horticulturists got congress to pass the plant patent law. Livestock breeders just don't seem to care. So, as matters stand, a new forage grass can get in the patent office register—but the cow that eats it can't.

Young New Dealers Want to Retain Unrestricted Power in Commissions, Boards

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1940

Washington, May 2—There is one thing about the young New Dealers who are fighting vehemently to keep the Walter-Logan bill from being passed by the Senate and that is their absolute frankness. They want to retain unrestricted power in the commissions, boards and bureaus and they do not hesitate to say so.

For this reason, it is interesting to examine perhaps the most forthright explanation that has yet come from the radicals as to the methods they use in exercising power under the broad grants of administrative law given them by careless-minded Congresses of previous years. The expression in question happens to be written by Abe Fortas, who served for a time as one of the attorneys under the securities and exchange commission and later became general counsel of the PWA. Mr. Fortas is being prominently mentioned as the probable nominee for the SEC to take the place of George C. Matthews who resigned.

The vacancy is supposed by law to go to a Republican, but since Mr. Fortas is general counsel for the PWA which is presided over by Secretary Ickes, who once upon a time was a Republican, this presumably makes Mr. Fortas a Republican, too. Anyway, the candor which Mr. Fortas revealed when he wrote an article in April, 1937, for the Duke University Law Journal may win him at least a recess appointment when Congress adjourns. Mr. Fortas described the inside workings of the SEC as follows:

"Wise administrators may, by discussion and analysis, use the requirement of disclosure to educate the registrant's attorneys. Questions and discussion, directed to the accuracy of statements, may raise the possibility that the propriety of a practice is subject to challenge. Subtle appeals to a higher self may cause slight changes in practices. But the limitations of such possibilities are indeed strict. Perhaps the impendable effect of an agency with high standards may in time permeate the practices of men; but skepticism concerning this possibility is indicated. Unless the administration has effective bargaining power, little can be expected. It must have sanctions or desired favors which it can trade for changes in practices. Once in a while under the securities act, the administrator will have something to trade. It may have a choice as to whether a particular statement will be considered accurate and complete, or deficient. It may be asked to exercise its discretion, for example, to accelerate the effective date of registration. Then, if the need of the registrant is sufficiently urgent, a trade may be consummated. In return for the favor of the administrator, the registrant may amend its practices in accordance with the administrator's conception of equity and justice."

The foregoing may come as a surprise to members of Congress who have innocently believed that delegation of power to commissions and bureaus meant an explicit authorization and did not involve trading or bargaining in public rights in accordance with an administrative commission might arbitrarily decide. But the revelation that bargaining is a part of the reform process and that commissions can capriciously decide what is or is not "accurate" or "complete" in a registration statement involving the flotation of securities will not come as a surprise to persons who have been up against government bureaus in recent years.

The theory that the end justifies the means and that so long as the objective is a benevolent one almost any liberties may be taken with statutory law represents an entirely different concept of public administration than has been considered morally sound heretofore. The Walter-Logan bill passed the House by a 3 to 1 vote as a protest against the excesses of administration commissions and while it is true that there are some defects in the House bill they can be corrected without difficulty by senators who really desire to see some measure passed which will really curb abuses in the exercise of public power.

Tells About Costs In Dairy Farming

Ithaca, N. Y.—The typical dairy farm business in New York state represents an investment of from $11,000 to $12,000, according to Dr. L. C. Cunningham of the state college of agriculture.

Farm management studies show that such a business consists of about 150 acres of land with a value, including the buildings, of some $7,500; livestock worth about $2,200; and approximately $700 worth of feeds and supplies. Variations from these figures are, of course, many.

These studies of the long-time trends of costs in dairy farming show that the trend of farm wages is upward, while that for purchased grain is fairly stable. Other dairy costs that are tending to rise over a period of years are those for dairy cows, taxes, insurance, and legume seeds.

Suggested adjustments to meet these long-time changes are discussed in the new Cornell bulletin E-427. Also included is a summary of investigations by the college of agriculture of the cost of producing milk, both by farm surveys and by cost accounts. During the past ten years the average cost of producing milk on a yearly basis has fluctuated around two dollars a hundredweight.

Interested New York dairymen may have single copies of this bulletin free by writing to the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, New York.

Uncle Sam Will Try Out Blitzkrieg in Louisiana

Red And Blue Armies Will Battle In Biggest Peacetime Test

By JOHN GROVER

AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—The American army's 1940 maneuvers are testing the new products of Europe's war laboratory.

Blitzkrieg, civilian participation, mechanization and the other advances in the so-called art of war must pass an examination in Louisiana gumbo mud. May 5 to May 25, before the Mr. Bigs in the U. S. military forces stamp "approved" on Europe's new techniques.

The 1940 maneuvers bringing together 70,000 men from 35 states are the greatest massing of troops in U. S. peacetime history. They fulfill a long-time army dream of large-scale training operations. Previously army units were forced to train separately at widely-scattered points.

A general who talks tough—and is tough—won authorization for the war exercises by hammering on the table and telling a few homely truths to congress.

The General Spoke Out
Jut-jawed Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, told 'em, cold turkey, that the United States army was improperly trained.

"We have been forced (by lack of funds) to build up our technique of command and control, and even our development of leadership, largely on a theoretical basis," General Marshall declared.

General Marshall asked money to train his troops right. He got it. That's why (1) blitzkrieg, (2) the new organization of the American army division and (3) military mechanization are under critical scrutiny in the stiffest peacetime test ever faced by American troops.

Blitzkrieg wowed the world when the Germans overran Poland. But in Finland the Russian version flopped flatter than spilled milk.

Somewhere between the startling success of the Germans and the monumental bust of the Soviet gasoline cavalry lies the ideal—and limited—function of a power army. The 20-day operations in the toughest terrain available will determine the capabilities and limitations of mechanized forces.

The 20,000-square-mile war games sector was deliberately

Three Generals

AP Feature Service
Washington—The three generals spotlighted by 1940 maneuvers reached the top without West Point diplomas.

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, was graduated from Virginia Military Academy. Maj. Gen. Walter Campbell Short, commander of the Blue army, was appointed second lieutenant of infantry after getting his degree from University of Illinois in 1901.

Maj. Gen. Walter Krueger, Red army chief, came up the hard way. He was born in Germany, came to this country when a child, and enlisted as a buck private in the Spanish-American war. He came up through the ranks to win his stars.

chosen to put men and machines through the acid test under adverse conditions. It is laced with bayous and swamps. The Red and Sabine rivers, with few bridges, form natural barriers to sweeping troop movements.

Garand Gun Will Be There

The maneuvers will be the first broad test of the new streamlined army division. Total strength is 11,000 men, compared to 22,000 in the old unit. But the smaller force packs as much potential death as the old because their guns are better.

The new divisions are equipped with the army's pet killer, the Garand M-1 semi-automatic rifle. It pops off rat-a-tat-tat style—five times as fast as the old Springfield rifle.

The new division can "march" 75 miles a day, as against the 15-mile on-the-hoof range of the old. Doughboys get a break. They ride half the time. The old army mule that ran on hay and profanity has been given the air. The 1,000 trucks of the new division haul half the outfit, then shuttle back for the other marchers.

The officers know the theories—they're about all they've had for years. But the brass hats want to know if they can translate theory into actual know-how.

Legion Lends A Hand
Basically, the actual maneuvers pit two armies, with full modern equipment, against each other. (Some 9,000 American Legion members have also been enlisted to man 1,600 aircraft warning stations, to test the new civilian auxiliary technique—used by Britain.

In this area, 70,000 doughboys will clash in mock war. From bases at left, the Red army will launch lightning war on secret objectives. The Blues (at right) will defend. Foe of both will be swamps and mud, but these will prove the worth of modern war implements in sweeping troop movements.

The Blue Army, 45,000 troops under Maj. Gen. Walter Campbell Short, is based north of Alexandria, La. The Red army—a highly mobile force ideally fitted for blitzkrieg's lightning thrusts—is based 100 miles west at Jasper, Tex., an important highway junction. Maj. Gen. Walter Krueger is in command.

The 100-mile no-man's land is a tangle of wild country and mud. The primary roads run north and south, and the armies must move at right angles to the roads to maintain a broad front.

To the north lies Shreveport, center of an oil empire, no mean military prize. Southeast is New Orleans, also a prime objective. The Red army is poised to thrust at either place. It is the Blue army's problem to interpose between the thrust and either objective.

The Red army strategy may result in a pincers movement north and south from Jasper. But the wide frontal advances must proceed through the heavy going in the back country.

A Trial By Gumbo

All the army's new guns and equipment must undergo "trial by gumbo," and the binoculars of staff observers alert for the failure of equipment in goosy terrain. So must aviation, tanks, heavy and light artillery.

The 1940 war games will show

French Liner Sails From New York

New York, May 2 (AP)—A pretty girl, waving a dainty handkerchief from decks loaded with warplanes, put a dash of peacetime gaiety into the sailing of the Ile de France, the great French liner which plowed the Atlantic today toward some belligerent port.

Three thousand well-wishers were stirred to voluble delight at dusk yesterday when a shapely brunette in blue appeared on the liner's bridge and waved adieu as the ship departed from its Staten Island pier.

Loaded with copper ingots, brass bars, oil and crated airplanes, the "Ile" carried two passengers, whose names were not disclosed but who were described as a member of a French purchasing commission and his 16-year-old daughter.

Capt. Herbert Fontaine, who brought the vessel in to New York last September 8, was in command as the "floating art gallery"—now stripped of her luxurious furnishings—set out on her first mission since the war began. She was manned by a crew of 375.

The ship's destination was veiled in secrecy. Some thought she might sail to Halifax, there to trans-ship her cargo and then head for Australia for troop transport duty. Others speculated on the possibility she might dash straight for Europe with her valuable cargo.

Unlike her British predecessors in war duty, the Queen Mary and Mauretania, the Ile de France was not painted completely gray, but sported black funnels and hull and a pastel blue-gray superstructure.

Only the French Normandie and the British superliner, the Queen Elizabeth, of the giant passenger ships which originally sought haven in New York, remain in port.

Marion Talley Plays Her Role

New York, May 2 (AP)—Marion Talley was back in the role of mother today, undismayed by the fact that her 5-year-old daughter Susan knew her only as "this lady."

The final chapter in a bitter custody suit between the singer and her estranged husband, Adolph Eckstrom, was written yesterday when Eckstrom turned the child over to her mother who is to have her for nine months of each year in accordance with a court order.

Newspapermen and photographers were present in Eckstrom's studio apartment to take down a play-by-play account of the separation.

The parting was so distressing to the father that at one point he broke down and dashed from the room, returning when he had composed himself.

"Hello, my baby!" Miss Talley said as she entered.

"Do you remember this lady?"

Eckstrom asked. (Miss Talley had seen the child only once since shortly after her birth in 1935.) "You are so beautiful," Miss Talley interjected.

There followed a conversation between Susan and her mother about going "on a vacation" in California, and then:

Eckstrom: "Don't you care for your daddy any more? You do care for me, say you do a little bit."

Talley: "Say yes to daddy."

Eckstrom: "Please don't prompt her."

Miss Talley will keep the child until June 15, under terms of the custody verdict, after which she must be returned to Eckstrom for three summer months.

A gigantic water curtain, 40 feet high and 300 feet long, and 500 aquabells and aquabeaux will be major features of Billy Rose's brand new Aquacade in the New York State Marine Amphitheatre at the World's Fair of 1940 in New York. Eleanor Holm, former Olympic backstroke champion and one of the outstanding feminine personalities of the exposition last year, again will be the star of the 1940 Aquacade.

Seventh Birthday Of American Beer

Re-legalized on April 7, 1933, American beer arrives at its seventh birthday. Today, supplies and equipment for the brewing of beer are gathered from every state. The basic agricultural products are converted into beer in some 600 breweries in 40 states. The finished product is then returned to every state in the Union for legal sale by thousands of wholesalers and hundreds of thousands of retailers. In seven years since re-legalization, the American brewing industry announces that it has provided: Employment for a million persons in the production and distribution of beer, and in the more than 100 trades serving the brewing industry. Business benefits amounting to eleven billion dollars, much of which flows back into local trade channels through purchases of innumerable commodities by the retailer and his employees. Public revenue to Federal, state and local treasuries through tax payments totalling two and a quarter billion dollars. Farm products market through purchase of $600,000,000 worth of grains and hops, requiring the yearly cultivation of more than three million acres. Manufacturing stimulus through orders for a billion dollars worth of machinery, equipment, containers, etc., the production of which consumed large supplies of basic materials. Transportation, fuel and power purchases totalling 400 million dollars throughout the nation. An industry program in the public interest, designed to keep conditions surrounding the sale of beer as wholesome as beer itself.

No Milk or Cream
Chicago, May 1 (AP)—Several hundred thousand Chicago and suburban residents went without milk and cream for breakfast this morning. A strike voted by the milk wagon drivers union halted virtually all home deliveries in the metropolitan area. Drivers stopped work because of a dispute over a new wage contract with the Associated Milk Dealers of Chicago. Their old contract expired at midnight last night. Dealers sought a contract calling for a wage scale of $30 per week, plus commissions. The union held out for the old scale of $48, plus commissions. Czecho-Slovakia thought protest, will be represented with exhibits at the Golden Gate International Exposition of 1940.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Whistle Fizzled

Altoona, Pa.—A magician entertained the school class of Thomas Seidle, 12, and Daniel Mason, 9, by sticking wads of paper in their ears then blowing them out by "whistling magic tunes." Appearing at a hospital some time after school to have wads of paper removed from their ears, the youngsters reported: "We whistled and whistled, but it didn't work."

Last Straw

Camden, N. J.—Mrs. Dorothy C. Kipp of Burlington, N. J., told a divorce master she kept her troubles to herself when her husband, Samuel, of Altoona, Pa., knocked her down and kicked her, hit her with a bed lamp, pulled a gun on her while they were out for an automobile ride and threatened to throw her down a well.

But when he threw her out a kitchen window, she testified, she decided to do something about it. She sued for divorce—and got it.

Honeymoon Delayed

Kansas City—Richard Jones, 22 year old caddy, and Miss Annabelle Hogue, 18, hope someone will hurry up and return their marriage license. They lost it rushing to a minister's home and they don't want to buy another.

Game Called—Curfew

Lewiston, Idaho—Base hits are illegal after 10:45 p. m. in Lewiston. District Judge A. H. Featherstone fixed the curfew hour in deciding a suit of five home owners who charged that night baseball was a nuisance.

Faging Mahomet

Monroe, Iowa—In this instance the classes are coming to the teacher. W. A. Pye, who teaches arithmetic and agriculture in the Monroe schools, was injured recently when he fell off a truck. His classes since have been meeting at his home three times daily.

Ticklish Diet

Minneapolis—Martin Schneider is in a hospital recovering from an operation for the removal of a toothbrush from his stomach. The brush, a full-sized model, slipped down his throat when he was seized with a fit of coughing while brushing his teeth.

$92 Average Monthly Earnings of Workers

Albany, N. Y., May 2—Workers covered by unemployment insurance in New York State earned an average of $92.00 per month during the fourth quarter of 1939, Milton O. Loysen Executive Director of the Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance revealed today.

For this period, Mr. Loysen said, a total of 3,686,072 individual employee wage records have been processed, showing total earnings of $1,014,531,722. The monthly figure, he explained is derived from an average figure of $275 per capita for the quarter. These totals, it was emphasized, are subject to correction when all supplemental and delinquent employer reports for the period have been received and processed.

Traveling Puppet Show Here Friday

A traveling puppet show is coming to Kingston tomorrow to help the police department war on "screwdrivers."

Puppets are one of the oldest forms of entertainment. Their origin has never been definitely established but it is known that they used to entertain the people of ancient Rome and Athens. Previous to last year, when the Shell Puppet Show toured the eastern seaboard for eight months, puppet shows were not available to the general public except in a few metropolitan centers, and then, usually, only at a great expense of time and money.

The puppets of the puppet show coming here, Friday, will, under the manipulation of two professional puppeteers, demonstrate the evils of "screwdriving" and "screwjacking." The puppet show is a part of the Shell Safety Squadron, and was built by Bill Baird, one of the country's outstanding builders of marionette and puppet shows. Baird's shows have been features of several world's fairs and of the stage shows of the Radio City Music Hall and elsewhere.

Blueberry Growing Told in Circular

Geneva, N. Y.—Pointers on the growing of highbush blueberries in New York state, including information on soil and cultural requirements, varieties, and many other details form the subject of a new circular just published by the Experiment Station here and now available upon request. Prof. G. L. Slate, small fruit specialist, and Prof. R. C. Collison, soils specialist, authors of the circular, hasten to point out that the blueberry is not to be confused with the huckleberry which differs from it both botanically and in edibility, especially the cultivated blueberry.

Commercial production of blueberries began in New Jersey in 1916 and there are now over 1,000 acres planted to blueberries in that state with smaller areas in production in Michigan and New England, say the station workers, who add that in New York state a supposed lack of suitable soils and of information concerning the cultural requirements of the crop have retarded any extensive planting of blueberries in this state. The circular has been prepared as a guide for prospective planters and in its preparation the station specialists have drawn freely upon reports of experimental work by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the New Jersey, Michigan, and Massachusetts experiment stations.

The selection of the site with reference to soil type, the water table, and especially the soil reaction is regarded as of primary consideration and is dealt with at some length in the circular. As to whether there are suitable soils for blueberries in New York state, the authors point out that New York has nearly 50,000 acres of Saugateau soils, the soil type upon which all commercial blueberry plantings in Michigan are growing and which is quite similar in many of its characteristics to the blueberry soils of New Jersey.

Considerable progress has been made in recent years on the improvement of blueberries with the result that cultivated varieties are now available that are far superior to the general run of wild blueberries. Fourteen of the most promising of the newer varieties are briefly described. Information is also included on setting out the plants and on their subsequent care, as well as on pruning, fertilizing, propagating, harvesting, marketing, and other details of blueberry growing.

HENRY FAGHER

Announcement was made Wednesday at the luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club held at the Governor Clinton Hotel that Albert Kurdt was elected president of the service club for the fiscal year beginning in July. Other officers for the new term are vice president, B. C. Van Ingen; secretary, E. C. Boessneck; treasurer, Henry Fagher.

Program Chairman Schmid presented a very interesting 4-H program. E. R. Bower, 4-H director, briefly explained the work that is done among the young people on Ulster county farms. He introduced the Meyer brothers of Glenford, who are individual members, and Martin Jensen of New Paltz, a member of a unit.

The young men gave detailed accounts of their activities which included just about everything there is to be done on a farm. The Meyer boys told of their work with chickens, turkeys, pigeons, pheasants, pigs, cows, bulls, besides raising enough products for their boarding house, where they also worked. Despite this seemingly busy program, the boys found time to play baseball and enjoy their automobile.

Young Mr. Jensen told of his farm activities and his prize winning trips to the state fair and through the middlewest. Visitors at the meeting included Rotarian M. S. Hammond of Catskill and Frank Siena and J. M. Shaffer.

Bigelow Says Pittsburghers Should Give Cash to Hitler

New York, May 2 (AP)—Some Texas College boys and a professional strong man started scheming up a plan to kidnap Adolf Hitler today while a college dean branded as "war-mongering" the million dollar reward offer for the Nazi fuhrer.

Unidentified Pittsburghers, through President Samuel Harden Church of the Carnegie Institute, offered the cash to anyone who'd deliver Hitler to the League of Nations, unharmed, before May 31.

The Texas boys telephoned a Dallas newspaper saying they'd like to attempt the "snatch" but were "deterred by lack of finances." They suggested that the Carnegie Institute finance them and forget about the reward.

Another Texan, a professional strong man in Houston, wired the New York Times: "Will go after Hitler and bring him back. Must have hundred-thousand-dollar drawing account and transportation to Germany made possible."

Addressing a letter to Sponsor Church, Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, assailed the plan as an attempt to precipitate war between the United States and Germany, adding: "It (the proposal) indicates that the time has arrived for the American people to begin to list our war makers. You have won the unique position of war maker No. 1."

Poultney Bigelow, long time friend of the former German kaiser, thought the whole thing was "absurd."

"They ought to present the $1,000,000 to Hitler to help the wounded. Hitler is going to win. He is stronger than ever before."

Since an argument took place Wednesday morning between the pickets and workmen on the job a police officer has been stationed at the scene to prevent a repetition.

Springtime's Fresh Vegetables Bring New Life To Your Menus

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

Now come the pleasant days for the morning marketer. Stalls and counters are piled high with the multi-colored freshness of spring vegetables. It's a gay sight to see—and a sight warming to the budget. For prices of vegetables, as a rule, are lower now.

The allure of these garden-fresh tempters doesn't stop there, either. They're well health-givers and marvelous menu-brighteners. Why not take your spring tonic the vegetable way?

Try this gay spring combination. Let it serve as the main part of a luncheon or dinner.

Drench in melted butter and seasonings. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked eggs. Pass a cheese or plain cream sauce, if you like, although this dish is well able to stand on its own.

Seasonings browned in bacon or olive oil give a teasing flavor to cooked corn, green beans, beets and cauliflower. Cook 1/2 cup chopped bacon or 3 tablespoons of oil until smoking, then mix in 2 tablespoons each of chopped celery, onions, green peppers and parsley. Simmer a couple of minutes and blend into 2 cups of your hot vegetable.

Green peppers and tomatoes make first-class containers for cooked asparagus and cheese, rice shaping mashed potatoes, carrots, corn, spinach or celery into ring shapes. For each 2 cups of vegetable, add 1 egg or 2 yolks, 1/2 cup milk, salt and pepper and 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs. Pour into a buttered ring mold and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Unmold, surround and fill with rice and cheese, mushrooms and green beans or macaroni and tomatoes.

Vegetables are always at their best when they are cooked until tender, drained thoroughly and handled carefully so they won't be soft or mashed. They are then ready to be lightly mixed into other ingredients. Remember these points and you will rate high as a vegetable cook.

Death Takes Year And Half Holiday

Reedsport, Ore.—Until a 79-year-old pioneer succumbed early this month, it began to look as though death was on a holiday in this southwestern Oregon coast town.

From December 6, 1938, until March 11, 1940, the town's undertaker looked vainly among his 1,800 neighbors for business. A man can't live on only one funeral in a year and a half.

The town's two physicians, Drs. H. C. Eastland and R. H. Fields, and the Oregon State Health Department said a combination of good luck, caution and "salubrious surroundings" was responsible for the low death rate.

Normally, about 12 persons in every 1,000 die each year in Oregon. This compares with 10.7 persons per 1,000 throughout the nation.

The last deaths before that of the oldest on March 11 were those of two men, 79 and 82. During the "holiday," two native sons, both past 75 years old, moved to two other Pacific Coast states in search of health. Both died shortly after leaving Reedsport.

The record is all the more remarkable by the fact that hazardous lumbering and logging operations employ many of the town's workers.

Carrots, potatoes, onions and turnips blend in a vegetable treat in this casserole.

Outline a mound of creamed potatoes, season with grated cheese, with buttered peas. Sprinkle the steaming whiteness with the gay yellow of grated egg yolks. Garnish with cress or parsley. To prepare the yolks, hard-cook 2 eggs, cool them, cut them in halves and carefully lift out the whole yolks. Press them through a coarse strainer held directly over the food. Mince the whites and put them into the accompanying sauce or save them for use later in sandwiches or salad mixes.

Here is another vegetable platter that's enticing enough to form the backbone of a meal. Pile Brussels sprouts on a platter, surround them with sliced cooked carrots and then add an encircling ring of asparagus or green beans.

and mushrooms, carrots and turnips or any leftover fish, meat or chicken. Make up a savory sauce—thicker than the usual vegetable sauce. Add an equal amount of the cooked food and use this to stuff scooped-out peppers or tomatoes. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. If you like, sprinkle grated cheese over the tops the last 10 minutes of the baking. This increases the food value and tastiness.

Another novel dish is stuffed squash. Bake small squash about 30 minutes—until quite soft—then stuff with creamed cabbage, celery, corn or broccoli. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake 20 minutes.

Old Paper Carried Accounts of War

The fire which damaged the wall and burned in between the floors at the Zucca home, 96 Green street, Christmas time, revealed the fact that years ago, for some reason or other, papers and magazines had been placed in between the walls and between the floors. Possibly this was done with the idea of insulation in mind.

At any rate, one of these magazines which was not burned, was made up of copies of the London "Pictorial World," issues of the weekly running from September to November, 1878.

The "weekly newspaper" is filled with engravings, some of them double page, which are interesting. Of particular interest is the fact that, just as today, pictures pertaining to war, such as grand review of troops near Paris, the British occupation of Cyprus, a double page engraving of Gibraltar, and the like, feature this publication of over 60 years ago.

The picture of Gibraltar is accompanied by a historical sketch of that renowned fortress, which was captured from the Spaniards July 24, 1704, by a British fleet under Admiral Sir George Rooke whole an army of 1,800 British and Dutch soldiers attacked by land. A five or six hours bombardment by guns of the British fleet on July 23 drove the Spanish from the forts, but when they retreated they left a mine which on exploding blew 102 men into the air. All told the British lost 60 killed and 216 wounded in the action.

The rock of Gibraltar is described as being some seven miles in circumference, 1,300 feet high and extending out into the strait for three miles.

Television Bigger Apparatus Smaller

(AP Feature Service)

New York — Television is showing tendencies to expand—that is in all respects except the amount of apparatus required, particularly for outdoor pickups.

For instance, when New York's tele-transmitter, operated by the National Broadcasting Company with the RCA system, went into operation in the spring of last year, two healthy-sized vans were required to carry the equipment to television football and other outdoor events. One had the apparatus to make the camera function, the other carried the transmitter to relay the signal to the main station on the Empire State Building.

Now this all has been reduced to such an extent that only about one-tenth as much material, in weight, is needed. In fact instead of two motor vans, a station wagon or even a limousine can haul the equipment around. What's more, the cost is one-sixth of the other unit.

Horse-Breeding On the Increase

Ithaca, N. Y. —New York farmers are becoming more interested in raising their own horses, a recent study shows.

Stallion owners reported that about 10,000 draft colts were raised last year; a few years ago the number was as low as 3,000 a year, says J. D. Burke of the department of animal husbandry at Cornell University.

Of the 542 draft stallions enrolled with the state department of agriculture and markets at Albany, about two-thirds are purebreds and one-third are grades. The usual service fee was $15 for purebred stallions and $10 for grades. By paying the larger service charge, the farmers are able to use superior stock in the breeding program.

Should more colts be raised? Burke points out that New York farmers buy from twenty to twenty-five thousands horses each year, which represents a cash expense of nearly $3,000,000. Three-fourths of the horses are imported from western states and Canada, and generally are not the best stock, he says. They average between eight and nine years of age and will have to be replaced in five or six years.

"Here, then, is an opportunity to save. In addition, a market would be provided for 50,000 tons of home-grown grain, 80,000 tons of hay, and 40,000 acres of pasture. Horse breeding in New York state may be expanded safely to the point where the needs for replacements are met. But no more horses should be kept on each farm then can be profitably worked a large number of days each year."

Russell Case Refused

New York (AP)—State Supreme Court Justice John McGeehan, who some time ago barred Bertrand Russell from teaching in City College, today refused all motions designed to reopen the case. He denied permission to the city board of higher education to substitute its own counsel for Corporation Counsel William C. Chanler, who had refused to appeal, and likewise refused to permit members of the board to intervene in behalf of Russell. Russell was found by Justice McGeehan to hold views upon morals which might be against public policy.

New York (AP)—The National League of Women Voters has determined to stamp out what remains of legal discriminations against women in the United States. The national board created an office of special director of "remaining discriminations against women" and recommended that groups in states where discriminations still exist work with the director toward eliminating all laws which "hamper women's effectiveness as citizens."

Special Service Is Held By I.O.O.F. at Olive Bridge

West Shokan, May 1 — "A Christless World" was the subject of the sermon presented at the I. O. O. F. re-dedication birthday service which was attended by a large and representative congregation Sunday evening at the Olive Bridge Methodist Church. The Rev. Harold Hoffman of Stone Ridge was guest speaker. The Rev. Mr. Eaton, the newly installed Olive Bridge circuit pastor, read the scriptures and offered the invocation and benediction. Grand Guardian Arthur E. Trowbridge presided as the evening's master of ceremonies. The choir had 17 voices with Mrs. Harry Moore as organist.

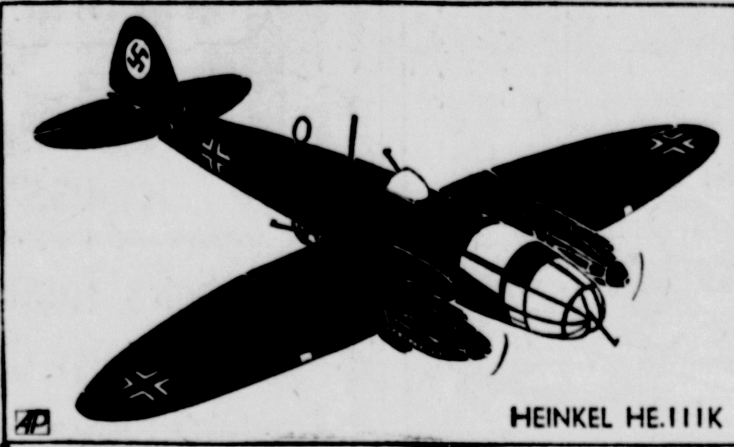

Mr. Trowbridge stated that in similar dedication services being held throughout the state of New York, Grand Master Cecil S. McConnell had anticipated an attendance of at least 50,000 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, but in judging from the Olive Bridge attendance this number would be exceeded.

Various communities were represented in the congregation including Shokan, Olive Bridge, Krumville, Samsonville, The Vly, Atwood and Stone Ridge.

The Olive Bridge service was jointly sponsored by Shokan I. O. O. F. and Olive Rebekah Lodges.

A basket of flowers in front of the altar was recognized by Mr. Trowbridge as having been presented for the occasion by Fred Gulnac to his wife, noble grand of Olive Rebekah Lodge.

Primary Results

Boston, May 1 (AP)—An unstructured Republican delegation and a Democratic slate almost entirely pledged to Postmaster General James A. Farley emerged today from Massachusetts' presidential primaries—fulfilling in large measure the desires of the two party political organizations. With Bay State voters showing scant consideration for insurgent groups, an old age pension slate supporting Thomas E. Dewey, without his authorization, was overwhelmed by the "official" unpledged G. O. P. delegation. Democrats gave but little more support to independents who bucked their state committee's Farley delegation.

Atlantic City — The question whether women should receive full ministerial rights has become the issue to divide delegates to the general conference of the Methodist Church. The committee on ministry rejected recently by a vote of 46 to 26 petitions seeking full pastoral status for women, but a minority member of the committee said the conference might disavow the majority report.

Motor Vehicle Bureau Records Heavy Business

Albany, May 2—The biggest January business on record in the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, with respect to gross receipts, registrations and number of licensed drivers, was reported today by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Carroll E. Mealey.

The January, 1940, receipts totalled $32,521,578.59, a gain of $2,652,831.33 over the total receipts of January, 1939.

Registrations issued during the first month of the year numbered 1,746,750, a gain of 148,712 over the total of January, 1939, registrations.

The gain in registrations was featured by an increase of 134,743 in passenger car registrations, an increase of 9,153 in commercial registrations and a gain of 1,829 in trailer registrations over January of last year.

The number of licensed drivers in the state reached a total of 3,992,131, during January, 1940, a gain of 240,415 over the number licensed a year ago.

Commissioner Mealey said the previous record in receipts, registrations and licenses was that of January, 1939.

IN KINGSTON TOMORROW! SHARE-THE-ROAD SAFETY SQUADRON

BY COURTESY OF KINGSTON SHELL DEALERS

Will show at Wall St.
in front of Winne's Hardware Store

"When the Share-the-Road movement started, traffic officials welcomed it—but no one could have predicted it would reach its present amazing size. Now, going after the heedless pedestrian as well as driver, this crusade is doubly deserving of success!"

Chas. Lypham

DIRECTOR OF THE AMERICAN ROAD BUILDERS' ASSOCIATION

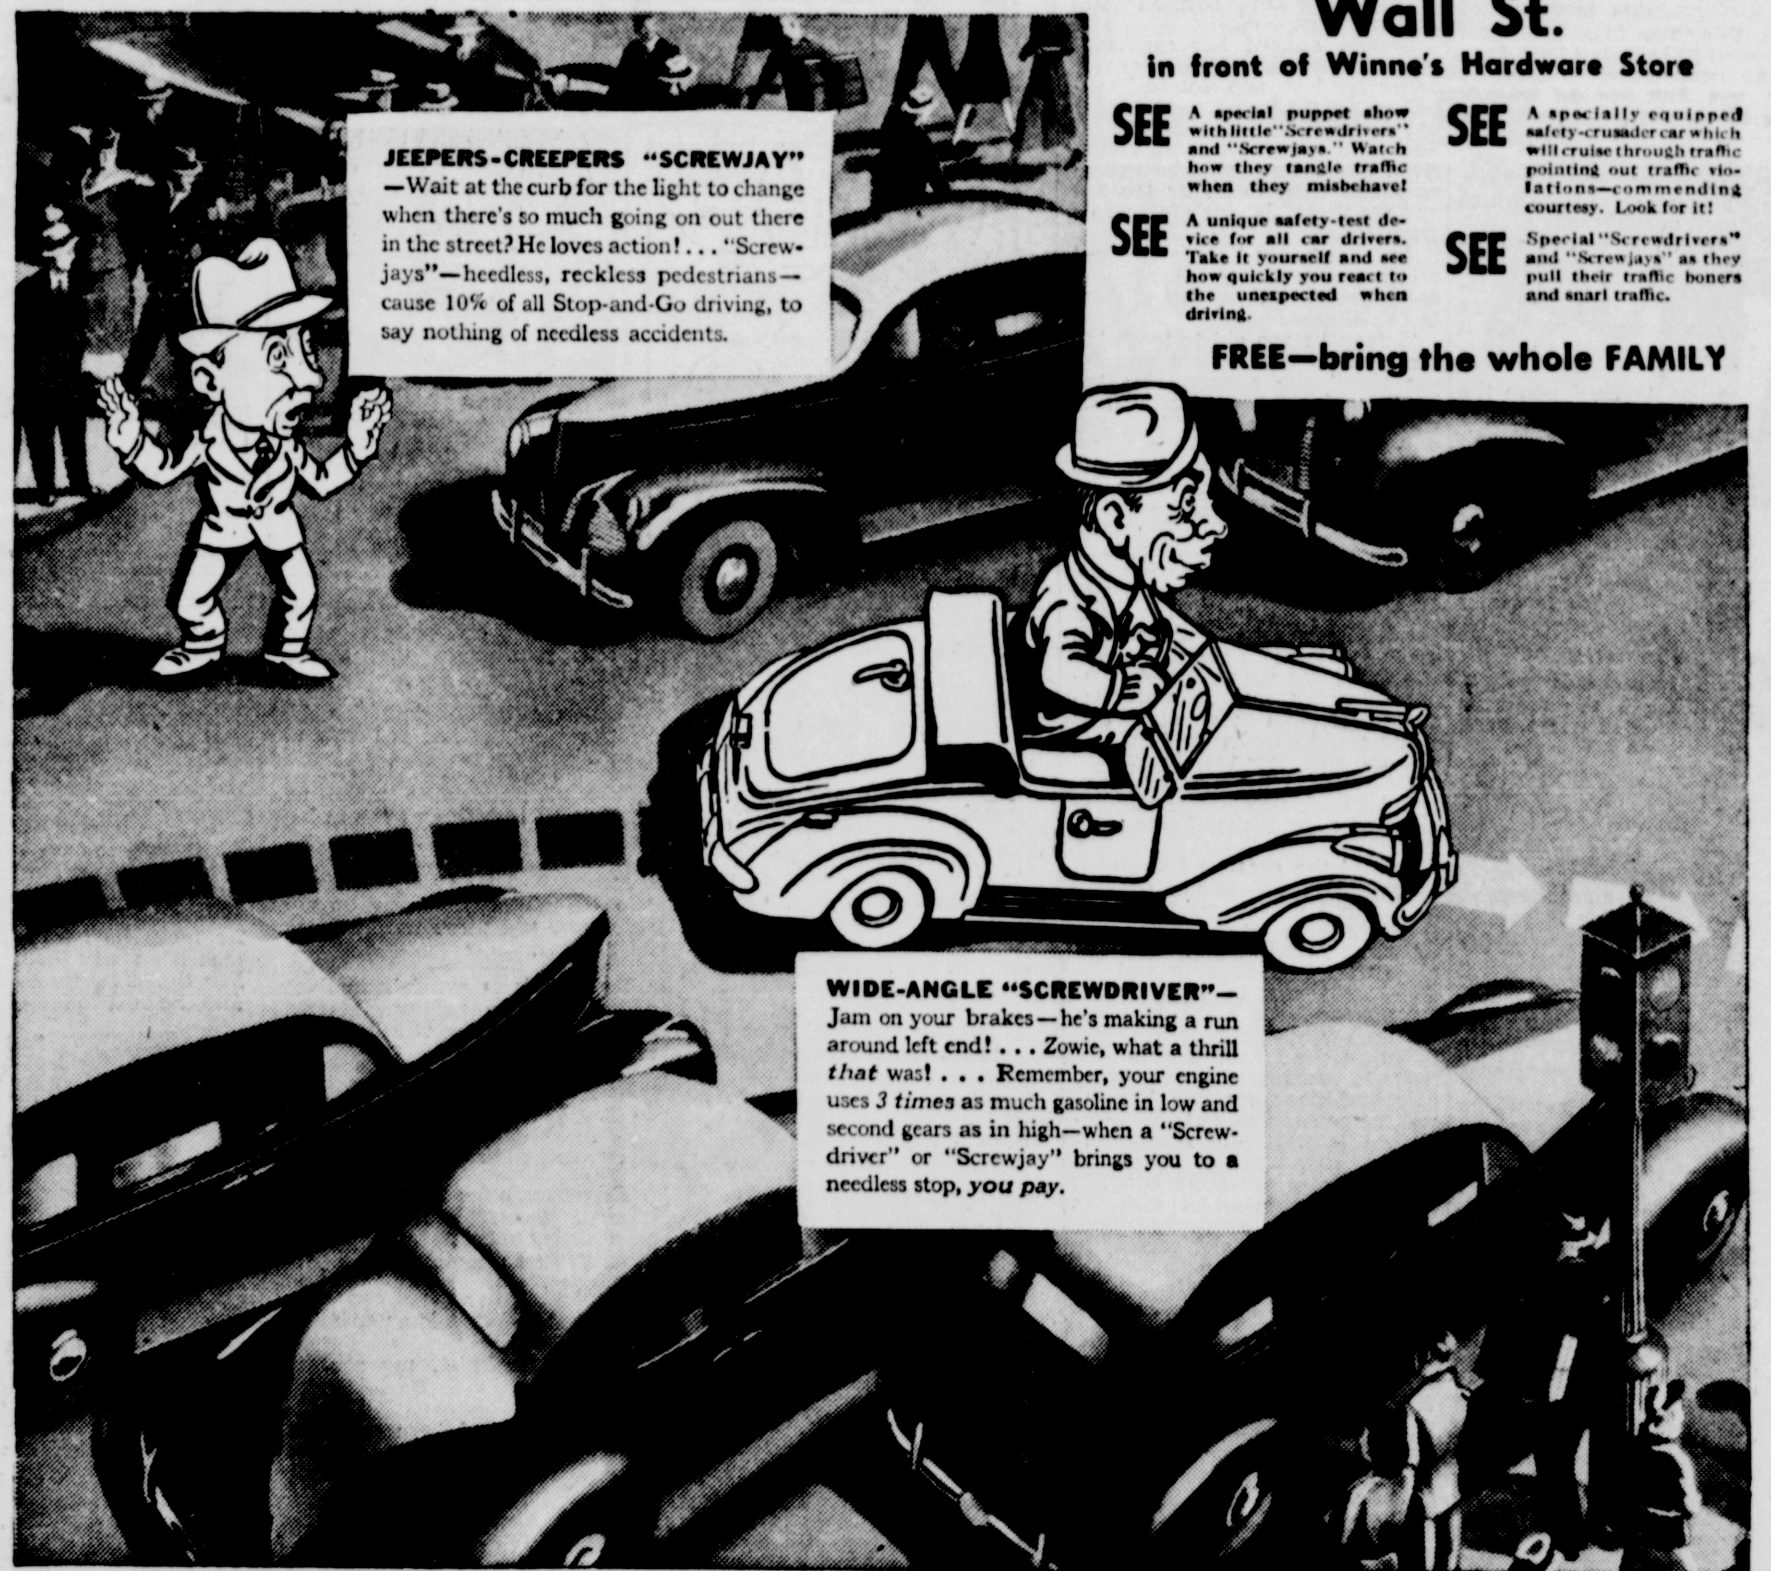

IT'S FREE! IT'S ENTERTAINING! It's instructive! We Shell dealers are putting on a real safety show tomorrow and everyone in Kingston is invited to attend.

The Share-the-Road Safety Squadron is brought to Kingston by Shell dealers in the interest of common-sense driving practices—careful walking habits. It is sponsored by the Share-the-Road Club—the crusade to cut Stop-and-Go 35% by getting rid of "Screwdrivers" and "Screwjays."

If you are not already a member of the Share-the-Road Club, join today at your Shell dealer's. You'll receive the new Share-the-Road Emblem that glows day and night for your car FREE.

And for the Stop-and-Go you can't avoid, we've got two NEW gasolines. New Super-Shell and new Shell Premium have the highest RPR (Road-Performance Rating) in Shell history!

RPR is the true measure of a gasoline's performance in your car. "Highest RPR" means faster starting, faster pick-up, higher anti-knock, more power and "go" in all gears, at all speeds. It means that either of these new Shell gasolines, in its price class, cuts the cost of Stop-and-Go more drastically than the fuel it succeeded.

JEEPERS-CREEPERS "SCREWJAY"
—Wait at the curb for the light to change when there's so much going on out there in the street? He loves action!... "Screwjays"—heedless, reckless pedestrians—cause 10% of all Stop-and-Go driving, to say nothing of needless accidents.

SEE A special puppet show with little "Screwdrivers" and "Screwjays." Watch how they tangle traffic when they misbehave!

SEE A specially equipped safety-crusader car which will cruise through traffic pointing out traffic violations—commending courtesy. Look for it!

SEE A unique safety-test device for all car drivers. Take it yourself and see how quickly you react to the unexpected when driving.

SEE Special "Screwdrivers" and "Screwjays" as they pull their traffic boners and snarl traffic.

FREE—bring the whole FAMILY

WIDE-ANGLE "SCREWDRIVER"
Jam on your brakes—he's making a run around left end!... Zowie, what a thrill that was!... Remember, your engine uses 3 times as much gasoline in low and second gears as in high—when a "Screwdriver" or "Screwjay" brings you to a needless stop, you pay.

This DAY-and-NIGHT SHARE-THE-ROAD Emblem FREE at these SHELL dealers.

LITTLE SPITEFIRE

By Jean Randall

YESTERDAY: Affairs on The Street are taking an odd turn. Judge Harper holds Brenda responsible for a silly love letter written by Maud VanNess, and Ned Barrow is so interested in botany that he has dropped the idea of marrying Elaine.

Chapter 25

Mysterious Malady

HERE was something the matter with Adelaide.

She had returned from her visit neither rested nor refreshed, though she was voluble over the kindness shown her by her hosts. She seemed not to notice the changes Isobel had made in the arrangement of furniture, she was entirely uninterested in reassuming the household reins; worst of all, she was indifferent to the health and happiness of her entire household.

"And that means something is very wrong indeed," Isobel said worriedly. "Adelaide is the kindest soul on earth. Ordinarily her first question when she's been away from us for so much as a day is how we have fared."

"Do you think she is ill?" Eric demanded. He had come down dressed to go out but, attracted by the conference being carried on in low tones by his fellow housemates, he had joined them. "She looks better than usual to me. She actually had a little color in her face at dinner."

"But she hardly touched her food," Brenda contributed. "Isobel had her favorite lemon pie on purpose and Adelaide just dabbled her fork in it; didn't eat a single bite."

Mac spoke. "She is ill. I'm perfectly sure. I happened to touch her hand just before she went upstairs and it was hot. Flu, perhaps; there's a lot of it about."

But the next morning Adelaide seemed better though languid and still unlike herself. She had no temperature as Brenda ascertained by the simple process of producing a thermometer and firmly bidding her landlady keep it in her mouth for the necessary length of time.

"Normal," Brenda sighed with relief.

"Of course it's normal, you ridiculous child," Adelaide spoke almost peevishly. "I'm not ill. Can't a person be a little tired from a train trip without everyone wanting to wish an illness on her?"

The two girls exchanged significant glances. Adelaide—to talk like that!

Out in the hall Brenda murmured: "Has she any close relatives? Could she have had bad news of them while she was in Springfield?"

"No," was Isobel's reply. "Practically her whole life is bound up right in this house."

"Money losses, then?"

"It might be, of course; but it isn't like Adelaide to get edgy over a thing like that. No, I still think she's ill in spite of not having any temperature."

By noon Adelaide did have a temperature; not a high one but enough to duplicate the misleading flush in her cheeks of yesterday. She refused her luncheon, fell into a heavy sleep from which she awakened unrefreshed.

"Adelaide, do let us call a doctor!" Brenda coaxed. "It may be flu—it may be some little digestive disturbance; but certainly something is the matter. Isn't it wiser to find out what, and correct it?"

But she had touched upon the one obsession of Adelaide's easy-going life. She had no use for doctors, and less for hospitals. Her husband, it developed, had died on the operating table. All the stubbornness of her character concentrated itself on this point. She sternly forbade the worried girls to call in a doctor; she refused the simple home remedies Isobel offered her.

A Right To Protection

BY NIGHT she was able to dress herself though the ominous color still burned in her cheeks, and her eyes were too bright.

Mac, informed privately over Miss Ormond's telephone as to the situation, made short work of her.

"Look here, Adelaide, I'm going to call a doctor. No, I don't want to hear what you think of them—I don't want to hear anything, as a matter of fact. Do you realize that the state of your health isn't entirely your own concern? You do keep a boardinghouse, after all. The people who live under your roof have a right to protection. It isn't fair. You may have something contagious, you know," he finished firmly.

It was the one argument which bore weight with her. For the sake of her beloved family she would submit to anything—at any rate, to the calling of a physician.

"But promise me one thing," she said, seizing Mac feverishly by the wrist. "Promise me, no matter what the doctor says, you'll not send me to a hospital."

I'd die—I'm perfectly sure I'd die—if I so much as went through the door of a hospital. Mac, promise!"

"I wish I could, dear," he replied. "And I do promise this: that if it's not strictly necessary you shall not be moved."

Her usually soft eyes glared at him. "The consent of the patient must be obtained before," she began.

"We won't talk of it now," he soothed her. "I haven't an idea you'll have to go to a hospital. It's probably just a touch of flu or something like that. A few days in bed, and the right medicine, and you'll be as good as ever."

As he started toward the telephone she called to him. "Not Dr. VanNess. Mac! I won't have him! Not a neighbor, a friend! If I must have someone listening to me, I want you to be a stranger!"

So Mac called a young physician whom he knew; and while Dr. Stern was busy with his rebellious patient upstairs, Adelaide's family waited anxiously for the verdict of the doctor.

"I can't tell yet," he said when he joined them. "I'm having some blood tests made tomorrow. It looks like a low form of typhoid. But where on earth could she have got typhoid here?"

In concert they all started to tell him of the Springfield visit; then stopped abruptly and allowed Isobel to complete the tale.

"The woman she visited lives just out of town. I don't even know whether there was city water there or not. She just got back yesterday, you see, and has been too unlike herself to tell us anything about it."

Eric asked: "Shouldn't she be in a hospital?"

"Of course she should, but the very mention of it throws her into hysterics," the doctor said with impatience. "In her present condition, and without her consent I have no right to order her there. Well, we'll see tomorrow!"

Not Much Wiser

BUT they were not much wiser when the reports of the blood tests came in. They were slightly positive on several counts; undulant, typhoid, malaria.

"But she can't have them all!" cried Brenda.

"She doesn't, in fact, have any one of them," the doctor informed them gloomily. "This simply means she's been running a temperature for a long time so it's simulating any number of things. There's infection, of course. I'll have more tests made and we'll soon locate it."

But Adelaide's illness proved to be one of those unaccountable cases which baffle medical science. Try as he would Dr. Stern could find no focus of infection. Yet the fever rose daily, nausea and weakness persisted and Adelaide roused only to full consciousness when the word "hospital" was spoken in her hearing.

Brenda shoved her cardboard with its neatly drawn squares under her bed, and installed herself as nurse. Isobel relieved her work to do. Both the men helped at night. Even Grandma could be trusted now and then to sit by the bed and see that Adelaide's few wants were supplied.

And presently Brenda received reinforcements. Miss Ormond came over the third day of Adelaide's illness.

"I may be too old to teach but I'm not too old to help care for the sick," she announced grimly. "You look tired out, Brenda. Child, go take a good long nap while I stay with Adelaide."

Kindly Dr. VanNess came over every evening to hear young Stern's report. He said he understood perfectly that Adelaide might prefer a stranger to a friend in her illness. Maud came, too, and tried to take her turn at nursing but she spilled the entire bottle of alcohol over the patient when she tried to give her a rub, she could not pass the bed without bumping into it, and altogether Brenda concluded that Maud could be of more help outside the sickroom than in it.

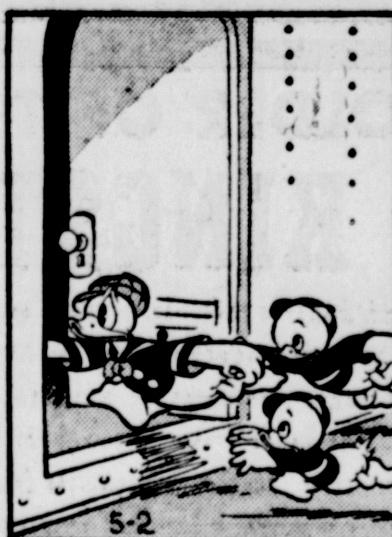

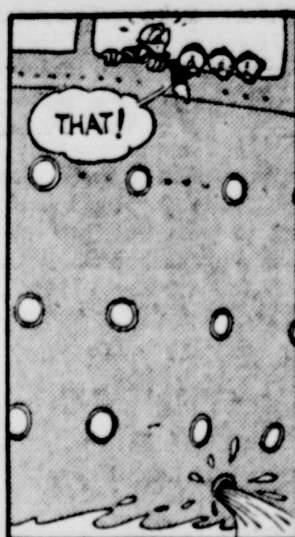

"If you'd plan the meals for us and sort of superintend Grandma, now and then," she suggested.

One of the greatest surprises—though Brenda said afterward there were so many it was hard to grade them—was the efficiency of Mrs. Arnold's Dorothy. She came late one evening and insisted on sitting up with the patient during the night. She was so altered in appearance that Brenda's tired eyes had to look twice to recognize her. Her heavy hair had been cut and thinned, and the permanent was an accomplished fact. It was not becoming to her, as her benefactor never tired of pointing out. But to Dorothy herself it was the equivalent of a magic robe, and in her own eyes she walked in beauty since its attainment.

And she was an excellent nurse.

Dairymen Plan For Field Days

Ithaca, N. Y.—Three regional dairy field days are scheduled in New York state during the next few months. The first is at the Norwich fairgrounds, June 8, for south-central New York counties including Broome, Chemung, Chenango, Cortland, Delaware, Otsego, Tioga, and Tompkins.

On July 26 and 27, dairy and livestock field days for central

New York dairymen of Onondaga, Madison, and other counties will be held at the state fairgrounds in Syracuse.

Western New York's dairy field day is set for July 27 at the Angelica fairgrounds in Allegany county. Cooperating counties are Chautauque, Erie, Cattaraugus, Niagara, Genesee, Wyoming, Allegany, Livingston and Monroe.

Farm bureau dairy committees in all the counties are cooperating to interest thousands of prospective purchasers of herd sires in the selection of bulls with good breeding. Dairymen throughout the state are urged to attend the field day most convenient to them.

More complete announcements will be made later, but at each event the program will include stunts and activities for both adults and young farmers.

Doctors to Congregate

Doctors by the thousands will congregate at the New York World's Fair in mid-June. The annual convention of the American Medical Association in New York city is set for June 10-14, and, at its conclusion, more than 8,000 medical men will participate in a two-day program at the fair.

At a recent luncheon of newspaper men the following toast was offered:

"The ladies! Second only to the press in the dissemination of news!"

A teacher was trying to demonstrate a simple experiment in the generation of steam:

Teacher—What have I in my hand?

Pupil—A tin can.

Teacher—Is the can an animate or an inanimate object?

Pupil—Inanimate.

Teacher—Exactly. Now can any boy tell me how, with this can, it is possible to generate a surprising amount of speed and power almost beyond control?

Pupil (quickly)—Tie it to a dog's tail.

What's the use of building airy systems that take no account of human nature?

Foreman (of road workers)—Excuse me, but was that you singing?

Miss Soprano—Yes, why?

Foreman—Well, next time you sing I wish you wouldn't hang on that top note so long. The men have knocked off twice already, mistaking it for the dinner whistle.

A new collegiate definition for "parent" is "the kin you love to touch."

Wife—Don't try to make up with me! I heard you come in between two and three this morning, didn't I?

Husband—That's right, dear; two fellows were holding up my right side and three were holding up my left.

Example is a powerful stimulant generating increasing energy, greater capacity, better behavior, and higher thoughts.

Lady—You don't smoke cigars, do you little boy?

Boy—No, ma'am, but I can let you have a chew of tobacco.

The struggle for success in Hollywood, is heart-breaking, some girls having to break the hearts of at least three directors before getting a job.

Youngster—What is a pessimist, Dad?

Dad—A pessimist, my son, is one who, of two evils chooses both.

Junior, who had been carefully brought up, was sitting upon his father's knee in a crowded bus when a lady entered. "Lady," said Junior, as he got off his father's knee, "will you accept my seat?"

Waiters, of course, are not in a position to snap back at ill-bred guests; but one English head waiter once made the perfect retort to an uncouth customer:

"My position, sir," he said, "does not allow me to argue with you; but if it ever came to a choice of weapons, I would choose grammar."

Evolution

At twenty-one he knew it all. (at least that was his view).

At thirty he found other men who knew a thing or two;

At forty he began to see the reason life starts then.

For things he thought he knew before, he had to learn again.

Man—I thought you said you always have the last word with your wife, but I notice she orders you around the whole time.

Friend—I do have the last word. Don't you always hear me say, "All right!"

Bumped

John Henry stumbled in the dark.

And got a nasty spilling.

Which caused him sadly to remark: "Ain't empty sockets killing?"

Record Shad Take Of 324,000 Pounds Reported in River

New York, May 2 (AP)—A record shad take of 324,000 pounds for one day's fishing was established yesterday in the Hudson, the Bureau of Fisheries reported today. It was the largest since 1890 when the bureau's records were established.

The shad run up the Hudson, which usually starts about the middle of April and was delayed this year because of cool weather, suddenly broke yesterday.

Because of the unusual size of the run, fishermen said it probably would last only about 2½ weeks instead of a month.

"We believe that if the railroads had regarded themselves more accurately as purveyors of transportation rather than as guardians of a monopoly, they would have been more alert to take advantage of every development in their field and that a more progressive policy might have turned to their own distinct advantage the very things they now regard as a burden and a threat."—From the National Transportation Committee report of 1933.

Criminal Action Might Come From Printing Contracts

New York, May 2 (AP)—The record of testimony taken in a one-day hearing on state printing contracts will be turned over to the county district attorney of either Albany or New York for possible criminal prosecution.

The announcement was made by Bernard Botein, special counsel for Moreland Act Commissioner Frederick E. Crane, after he had completed his inquiry into alleged collusive bidding on state contracts from 1932 through 1939.

Officers of the J. B. Lyon Company of Albany, affirmed at yesterday's hearing that they made payments of more than $300,000 to the late Edward J. O'Connell, Democratic leader of Albany, and that one third was paid by O'Connell to Charles C. Walsey, head of the Burland Printing Company of New York, to permit the Lyon group to obtain three major state contracts.

Ernest A. Barvoets, president of the Albany concern, and Rollin B. Sanford, counsel for the firm, testified.

Because transactions took place both in Albany and New York, Botein said he was unable to say which prosecutor would get the record, but he indicated that Albany county probably would be the source of action.

Much of the space is available only in frontier regions, so the Federal government has been considering plans to subsidize building warehouses for food stores in central Switzerland, where an invader would have to cross many a snow-covered mountain range before reaching them.

Big Increase In Placements

Albany, N. Y. May 2—Local offices of the New York State Employment Service made 21,142 placements during March according to a report issued today by Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller. Of this total, 19,872 were in private industry and 1,270 were in public employment, such as WPA projects, public works, and governmental institutions.

Total placements in the Kingston area were 57 in private industry.

Statewide total placements went up to 13 per cent over the February total and were 31 per cent higher than in March, 1939. Jobs filled in private industry made a 12 per cent gain over the preceding month and showed a 63 per cent improvement as compared with March, 1939.

Over a period of years the State Employment Service has found that private jobs filled in March generally show a large seasonal upswing from February, the low point of the year for placements. A little less than one half of the private jobs filled in March were "regular," that is, expected to last more than one month.

Public placements numbered 1,270, an increase of 34 per cent over last month. This total, however, constituted less than one third of the number reported in March a year ago.

The Junior Sections secured 2,148 jobs for inexperienced young persons, a substantial increase of 30 per cent over February, and a 51 per cent advance over last year. Placements of persons handicapped by some physical disability numbered 352, an increase of 5 per cent over February and 53 per cent over March of last year.

Veterans received 443 jobs, 7 per cent more than last month and 22 per cent more than a year ago.

Officers in New York city received 52 per cent of the state's private openings and filled 49 per cent of the jobs in private industry and 67 per cent of those in public enterprises. The gain in private placements was substantially higher in metropolitan offices (20 per cent) than in the rest of the state (6 per cent).

Total registrations for work dropped to 139,103, a decrease of 7 per cent from February but a 51 per cent rise compared with a year ago. The file of registrants actively in search of work exceeded 600,000 persons, two thirds of whom were in New York city.

Herbs Add to Fame of Chefs

Ithaca, N. Y.—The ability to flavor foods by means of herbs accounts for the fame of many good cooks and chefs, especially in a country where the art of flavoring is largely a question of "will it be salt or pepper?"

But, says A. E. Griffiths of the department of vegetable crops at Cornell, a ray of hope for jaded palates is burning a little brighter these days. Country and city wives are leaning back through grandmother's and great-grandmother's recipe books for the names of herbs once used to brighten the monotony of frugal meals.

for information are going to the New York state college of agriculture, and seedsmen are listing more kinds of herbs in their catalogs. Folks soon may begin again to enjoy piquant dishes without visiting the great, and perhaps expensive, chefs of the cities.

Homemakers Interested
Now homemakers are introducing spicy, aromatic flavors, such as mint sauce for lamb, and dill and chive leaves for salads. Many will start a herb garden this spring.

The best way to start, according to Mr. Griffiths, is with a rather small kitchen herb garden, about 10 by 12 feet. This is just large enough to try a few varieties. Here's a good list, all easy to grow, as a starter: sweet marjoram, thyme, basil, summer savory, chives, spearmint, sage and parsley. Success with these may prompt others, such as tarragon, rose geranium, lemon verbena, bee balm, rosemary, or caraway.

The garden is convenient when near the kitchen. Some of the herbs are annuals and must be started every year, others are perennials and come up year after year. Because of this, the perennials should be at one side of the plot where they won't be disturbed when the ground is re-planted with annuals next year.

"Even if you can't make full use of your herbs in cooking, the herb garden will be a delight because of its fragrance and its attractive flowers," says Mr. Griffiths. "The low-growing kinds, such as savory, basil, and thyme, may be used as a border along a walk, instead of in the garden plot. Certain herbs, also make good ground cover where grass won't grow. Some will do well in a rock garden, or between the stones of a flagstone walk or terrace."

Limits Upon Hauling Allowances for Milk

Albany, May 2 (Special)—Limits upon hauling allowances for milk, which became operative Wednesday, will effect considerable savings to producers, Commissioner Holton V. Noyes of the Agriculture and Markets Department declared today.

Under the amended order approved in a recent referendum, Commissioner Noyes said, greater market stability should be obtained.

The commissioner's statement said: "It is recognized that the maintenance of market stability depends to a considerable extent upon the ability of a dealer to dispose of surplus milk without too much inconvenience or loss. If means of doing so are not readily available, the dealer may seek to dispose of the surplus milk by cutting prices in the marketing area."

"It was for this reason that the original order provided for the payment of market service allowances out of the equalization fund. Under this provision a handler who diverted milk from a fluid milk receiving station not equipped for manufacturing purposes, to another plant where manufacturing facilities were available, was allowed 23 cents for handling the milk in the first plant plus a hauling allowance of four cents per hundred pounds for the first five miles or fraction thereof, plus one-fourth cent for the next 20 miles, plus one-tenth cent per hundred pounds for each additional mile of the shortest highway distance between the two plants. It was believed that the reduced allowance for distances greater than 25 miles would afford sufficient check on any tendency to haul milk too far at the producer's expense. In practice, however, some handlers occasionally moved milk for several hundred miles, although the average haul was less than 50 miles.

"Under the amended order, hauling allowances are reduced to one-fourth cent per hundred pounds for the first 20 miles plus one-tenth cent for the next 45 miles, with no additional allowance if the milk is hauled a greater distance. The maximum hauling allowance, therefore, will be nine and one-half cents per hundred pounds for a maximum of 65 miles. If the milk were hauled a greater distance it would be at the handler's expense and not at the producer's.

"This may be contrasted with the present allowance of 13½ cents for a 65 mile haul and with an allowance of 33½ cents for a 265 mile haul. It is reported that nearly 500,000 pounds of milk were hauled about that distance in December. It should be pointed out, however, that this represented considerably less than one per cent of the total amount diverted during that month, and that the average hauling distance for the month was only 50 miles.

"The effect of the reduced hauling allowances will be carefully watched with a view to increasing or further decreasing the allowance if such seems desirable and when further amendments are proposed."

Convict Is Felled In Escape Attempt

Yonkers, N. Y., May 2 (AP)—Bullets from the guns of Brooklyn policemen felled a convict last night as he attempted to escape from a moving New York Central train.

The prisoner, Norman Zeff, 39, who was being transported from Auburn prison to New York city, was hit five times. At St. Joseph's Hospital here he was given a fair chance for recovery.

Zeff, serving a 12-year term for a 1935 Westchester county robbery, was in the custody of Deputy Chief Inspector Michael F. McDermott of the Brooklyn homicide squad and two detectives when he smashed a lavatory window and jumped out. The train had slowed to about 35 miles an hour. Detectives shot at him from the observation platform after stopping the train.

The officers would not say why Zeff was being taken, under court order, to New York, but it was understood he was to be questioned in connection with the slaying of two New York city policemen, one in Brooklyn and one in Manhattan.

Brine Comes Up In Oil Wells

Oklahoma City—From many of the prairies of inland Oklahoma it's less than a mile to salt water. That's because salt water lies directly below the rich oil fields. As an unwelcome by-product of 4,400,000 barrels of petroleum, there were 13,200,000 barrels of brine. That's enough salt water, experts say, to cover 400,000 acres six inches deep with dry salt.

Formerly, this brine was allowed to drain down natural water courses. Devastation followed. Towns dependent upon rivers for their water supply got a brackish and unhealthy fluid. Trees and crops along the streams withered and died. Livestock perished.

Then the state stepped in three years ago to halt further losses. The big companies, plagued by damage suits for millions of dollars, were glad to cooperate.

Engineers began putting the water back under ground. Today 30 disposal systems are pumping 150,000 barrels of brine daily into the earth. In terms of dry salt, that's six million pounds a day.

The oil companies paid the entire $1,500,000 cost of the systems, aided in technical phases of the installations by the Pollution Department of the State Division of Water Resources.

The disposal systems are relatively simple. A separator at or near the well cuts the brine away from the petroleum. Gravity lines carry the brine to a treating plant at the downhill end of the fields. There chemicals are added to coagulate the solids and the brine is run through a series of filters to take out impurities which might clog the permeable sands 300 to 7,000 feet below the surface, into which it is pumped.

Oil men's luck gave a filip to construction of a disposal system by one petroleum company in Pontotoc county. At the lower end of the field, in territory believed to be "dry," drillers struck a 2,600-barrel-per-day gusher and had to move over a quarter mile before completing a successful dry hole.

Two other houses were destroyed and 50 were damaged. (Photo transmitted by radio from London to New York).

Argument Arises Over Tulip Bulbs 'Drowned' at Fair

New York, May 2 (AP)—The "drowning" of all but 100,000 of the 900,000 tulip bulbs presented to New York city last fall by The Netherlands government for planting in Riverside Park stirred an international floral argument today.

The disaster, called by one observer the "largest flop in the history of American horticulture," led the city to call off its spectacular "tulip festival," scheduled for May 12 to 19.

A committee representing Holland tulip growers said that 95 per cent of the 100,000 hyacinth bulbs also given to the city by The Netherlands government had rotted away as a result of heavy spring rains and "bad drainage."

A bit piqued by this diagnosis, the park department replied that most of the bulbs had been damaged before reaching the United States, "probably by exposure to heat during the time they were stored."

A spokesman for the Holland growers denied heat had damaged the bulbs, but anxious to avoid controversy, added:

"We are not blaming anyone. No one was at fault for the failure of the planting. Least of all the tulips."

Night Drivers' Trouble Pasadena, Calif. (AP)—Half of this city's motorists are poor night drivers because of a deficiency of Vitamin A, studies by Dr. Henry Borsook, of the California Institute of Technology, indicate.

Might Tax Savings
Washington, May 1 (AP)—Emmet F. Connelly, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, told the United States Chamber of Commerce today that spending theories of the "government-must-do-it" school might lead to a federal tax on private savings. The question of government spending also was a major topic last night when the chamber heard Charles G. Dawes, Chicago banker and vice president under Calvin Coolidge, blame President Roosevelt's abolition of the federal coordinating service in 1933 as one of the chief causes of the present condition of chaos in the business system of our government.

Probe Is Widened
New York, May 1 (AP)—District Attorney William O'Dwyer said yesterday his inquiry into Brooklyn's cut-rate murder syndicate had prompted an investigation of seven locals of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) to determine whether they were gangster-dominated. The locals, he said, controlled stevedor-ing activities along the Brooklyn waterfront. The inquiry, O'Dwyer announced, would seek to discover whether members had been forced to contribute to union officials as well as to a defense fund he said was reported being collected for the murder ring.

Poughkeepsie—Dr. Harold B. Kerschner, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Saturday publicly stated his favor of the proposed concordat between the Protestant Episcopal and Presbyterian churches. Holding that it is inevitable that the two churches "shall ultimately be reunited," Dr. Kerschner declared himself to be in "complete accord with the proposed concordat," which, if adopted, would mark the beginning of closer relations between these two communions.

POSITION OF KNIFE AND FORK DOESN'T INDICATE ONE HAS FINISHED EATING

There's No Such Absurd Wigwag Rule, Says Emily Post, Telling What Meticulous Person Would Do.

Any rule to the effect that the fork tines are left one way or another on the plate to signify that one has finished eating is, I can assure you, non-existent in accepted etiquette. In fact, the whole idea is utterly absurd. But the following letter is not the first one I have had asking questions similar to this one: "A friend who is visiting me insists that the fork tines should be left upside down on the plate to indicate that one has finished eating and the plate can be taken away. I had never before heard of such a silly rule but my friend says that you will corroborate her statement."

When the knife and fork are laid on the plate with handles together and you stop eating, it is plainly evident that you have finished. A very meticulous person turns her knife blade to the left and leaves the fork tines up, but there is no wigwag signal idea attached to this; it merely looks neat.

A Sitting-Room-Bedroom

Dear Mrs. Post: I have just taken a large room in a private house, which I am going to furnish as a sitting-room (convertible into a bedroom by making up a bed on the sofa). (a) But since it is the room in which I must sleep, I am wondering whether you agree to the propriety of my inviting my friends in. I might even be able to accommodate as many as three tables of bridge. (b) Also, I am wondering about entertaining my few men friends here. May I consider this as I would an apartment in a regular apartment house, or am I expected for the sake of propriety to keep my door open when I have a man visitor? I have never lived like this before, and I don't know.

Six Months Proper Mourning Period

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother died six months ago and I am living alone in the family house. My brother is getting married soon and I'd like to give a party for him and his fiancée when he brings her here to visit me, if you think people would not think this disrespectful so soon after mother's leaving.

Answer: (a) If it is furnished as a sitting-room, then it may certainly be considered exactly as any other sitting-room. (b) Taking for granted that you come and go as an outsider in the house, you may shut your door just as you would in any apartment house or hotel. Of course, if you are a "paying guest" in the house of some friends, they may perhaps consider shutting yourself off behind closed doors an impolite and even questionable thing to do.

Answer: The strict exactions of leaved yesterday have had to give way to practical needs. In the present day, six months is considered a respectfully long period of mourning. To include all your relatives and best friends will certainly be proper. Whether you may give a large general reception is a question that you and your brother should consider in the light of the point of view of your own community. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

A small thing, an introduction—but how quickly it can reveal the socially inexperienced!

The wife who introduces her husband with "This is Mr. Smith!" makes a very poor impression. A well-mannered woman would say to acquaintances, "This is my husband," or, to an intimate friend, "This is John."

A pity for a wife not to be sure of etiquette, for her social graces may be an important factor in her husband's career.

If in doubt about whether to rise for a greeting, check up! A woman always rises as hostess to greet her guests. She rises, too, when introduced to a much older woman, but never for a man unless he's very old or very distinguished.

How to reply to a formal invitation? Write your answer by hand, spacing it as the invitation was spaced. Uncertain about whether to "dress up" for a party? Call your hostess and inquire, "Are we dressing formally?"

Have the poise and assurance that comes from knowing the right thing! Our 32-page booklet tells what's correct for hostess and guest; gives etiquette for theatre, country club and hotels, for traveling, motoring, sports, dances, tipping, conduct toward servants.

Virginia Hoffman Is County Queen

Their decision in favor of Miss Hoffman, who was the popular choice of the audience from the beginning, was unanimous.

Runners Up In Contest

Runners up in the final selection for the honor of queen will be members of Miss Hoffman's court of honor: June Houst, 17, of Bearsville; Vera Mackey, 16, of 82 Brewster street; Margaret Oakley, 17, Stone Ridge; Sally Sundstrom, 19, of Marlborough; Gloria Woolsey, 16, of Milton, and Helen Smith, 16, of 159 Hurley avenue.

Miss Hoffman, the queen, represented Kingston High School; Miss Houst, the Ulster County American Legion organization; Miss Mackey, the winner of the "red-headed girl" contest, the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association; Miss Oakley, the Stone Ridge Grange; Miss Sundstrom, the village of Marlborough; Miss Woolsey, the First National Bank of Milton, and Miss Smith, the Kingston Y. M. C. A.

Zacharie Rogers of Marlborough, chairman of the queen's contest, was master of ceremonies for the main beauty contest and also for the one conducted by the volunteer fire companies of Ulster county to choose a girl to represent them. Miss Vera Mackey won this contest.

Amateur Contest Winners

Commander John Melville of Kingston Post, American Legion, introduced the 19 acts presented to the audience of more than 700 prior to the beauty pageant. Miss Virginia Kless, 12-year-old pianist of Ellenville, won first prize of $25. Second prize of $10 went to the Spinning Trio on roller skates. Newton Priest, Ralph Miller and Everett Soper; third, $5, to the cowboy singers, Tex, Slim, Doc and Patsy, and third, a trip to the New York World's Fair, to Marion Klein, soprano singer. "Dude" Roberts, dancer, received honorable mention.

The amateur contest judges were Alexis Kosloff of Woodstock, Harold Hoffman of New Paltz Normal School, Chester C. DuMond of Ulster Park and Robert Hawksley and Salvatore Castiglione of Kingston.

Previous to the show, there was a concert by the American Legion Junior Band, under the direction of Salvatore Castiglione, which was very much enjoyed.

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman made the address of welcome, opening the program, and during his talk predicted that within five years the annual apple blossom festival will be one of the main attractions drawing thousands of travelers to Kingston.

Other speakers were Henry R. Bright, general chairman of the Apple Blossom festival this year, Stanley Dempsey, chairman of the Legion amateur show, and Mickey Walker, who received an introduction as the former welterweight, middleweight and lightweight boxing champion of the world, now a resident of Kingston.

A special dance revue by the pupils of Paul Yocan, local dance instructor, concluded the night's program.

building, however, is a part of the main Eagle Hotel building and plans are being made to secure an architect's opinion as to the possible cost and also the feasibility of erecting a supporting wall when the Eagle Hotel building adjoining is removed. It is planned to raze the old Eagle Hotel building, which has been closed for some time.

With the removal of the Eagle Hotel building to the east of the four-story annex, a new supporting wall will be required if the four-story building is to be retained. In the opinion of many it would be advantageous to make this repair and save the building for office use.

It is expected that the matter of cost and advisability of doing this work will be presented to the board at its next session. Pending action by the board of supervisors this work will be held in abeyance.

Mural Reflects Earlier Boating Days on Hudson

In the studio of Georgina Klitgaard above Woodstock, is a large mural to be hung in the Poughkeepsie post office. The work is the result of considerable research and study of the old boating days along the river and shows Poughkeepsie almost at the start of the days when it began to grow from a river village into a thriving city. Two of the earliest river steamers, the Austin and the America, are prominent in the picture and the older sailing vessels shown in contrast mark the turning point of river boating in this region. The work is done in the style which has won Mrs. Klitgaard prominence in the art world. It is most effective in color and arrangement and reflects the true character of the beautiful Hudson.

In Newburgh Fire

Newburgh's police and fire authorities are investigating the origin of a fire in that city which caused damage probably exceeding $10,000 to Moose Lodge, formerly Labor Temple, on Liberty street, and injured five firemen. The fire broke out shortly after 11 o'clock Tuesday night and completely destroyed the roof and entire top floor of the brick structure erected in 1922.

The injured firemen were: Lieut. Hubert Dunn, whose feet were crushed between rungs of the mechanical ladder of one of the fire trucks; and Firemen John Heaney, who fell from a roof, Vincent Murphy, also fell from a roof, Enos Van Amburgh, overcome by smoke, and Call Manburgh and for a time endangered John Cooney, whose hand was severely lacerated by broken glass. It was the third spectacular blaze within a month in Newburgh and for a time endangered several buildings close by.

Recs and Can-Ams Start Baseball Season at Stadium on Friday

Locals Anxious to Mow Down Club From Upstate Loop

Leaguers Have Never Lost Pre-Season Exhibition—Game Scheduled to Start at 5:45

Kingston baseball fans will have their big night Friday at the Municipal Stadium.

The first game of the season is scheduled between the Gloversville club of the Canadian-American League and Charlie Husta's Kingston Recreations.

Manager Mel Schaffer of the upstaters said today, "We've never lost an exhibition previous to the regular season and we're not going to let tomorrow's contest be the first."

"I think we have enough good talent here to take over the Can-Ams," opined Manager Husta concerning the unofficial opening of local baseball activities slated to begin at 5:45 o'clock.

"This may only be an exhibition, but it's important to our local boys and they'll fight to the last ditch to upset that bunch of upstaters who are matched with the Albany Senators for another tune-up tilt, Monday, May 6," he said.

Likes Swarthout
"This fellow Bud Swarthout looks pretty good," said Schaffer of the local southpaw. "We may assign him as the starting pitcher if a slight injury he suffered in practice does not bother him."

Gloversville has two regulars ready, too. Howie Schultz and Jerry Curran, who are right in trim after spending the spring training period in the south.

This is the way Gloversville will line up: D. Dzuris, 11; William Enos, 1b; Lou Wamaker, 2b; Barney Hearn, cf; Johnny White, rf; Charlie Brennan (Poughkeepsie), 3b; Harold Palmer, c; Bill Roth, 2b; pitchers, Howie Schultz, Jerry Curran and Bud Swarthout.

"We'll have two full clubs ready for action," was Charlie Husta's comeback when he was asked about a lineup. "I'm not handing out my starters until game time, though," he said.

In all probabilities Schoolboy Bush or Charlie Neff will take over the mound duties. George Zadany, Joe Hoffman and Vince Stoll will be ready for duty being the bat.

The rest of the team: Jack Schatzel or Bing Van Etten, 1b; Charlie Buck or Milly Berardi, 2b; Jimmy Turck or Chappie Van Duzee, ss; Husta or Andy Celuch, 3b; outfielders—Vince Smedes, Eddie Minasian, Bill Thomas, Press Knight, Bill Hopper, Mac Tiano.

Poor baseball weather has handicapped the Recs as far as workouts are concerned, but the locals are anxious and ready to go tomorrow against Gloversville.

Woodstock Races Start on May 12

Sunday, May 12, is the date for the opening of the Woodstock Legion Speedway track for the third season of midget automobile racing.

There should be plenty of thrills this summer, said one of the speedway officials, because the track has been resurfaced to speed up the races.

New cars will be entered this year by Bud Marl, Bob Wright and Dick Doyle, and others.

Time trials are scheduled for 2 o'clock and the races at 3 o'clock.

Best Baseball Bats Must Have Two Years Careful Seasoning

By JUSTIN ANDERSON
AP Feature Service

Louisville—It takes almost as long to make a baseball bat as it does a small warship—around two years.

Of course, it doesn't take two years of actual work to turn out a bat. A bat can be made in a week, but the rest of the time is consumed in air-curing. The wood must be just right.

Here's how Hillerich and Bradshaw, the factory that makes most of the bats used in the major leagues, lists the chapters in the life of a bat:

After a tree is felled, it is cut into sections, which are split into what the factory calls billets. These are round or square and approximately 3½ feet in length. The billets are shipped here, graded and seasoned for about two years. Then they are ready for the machines.

Two Trips To Lathe

They are given a rough turn on the lathe, inspected and put on the lathes again for final fashioning in to the weight, length and size of the various models. Then they are sanded, branded, lacquered or stained and prepared for shipment.

New York and Pennsylvania furnish most of the wood for these greatest of peacetime weapons. Most bats are made of ash. A few are hickory. Hickory bats are not so popular because the wood is heavier. More wood can be used in ash bats than hickory and that's what the ball players want. Some fungo bats are made of willow. Years ago many bats were willow. That's where one nickname—the "willow"—originated.

County Clerk's Records Reveal Sportsmen Are Active All Year

Ulster county sportsmen apparently are not confining their activities to any one sport but prefer a year around diversion, if the records regarding the issuing of hunting and fishing licenses in the Ulster County Clerk's office are to be relied upon.

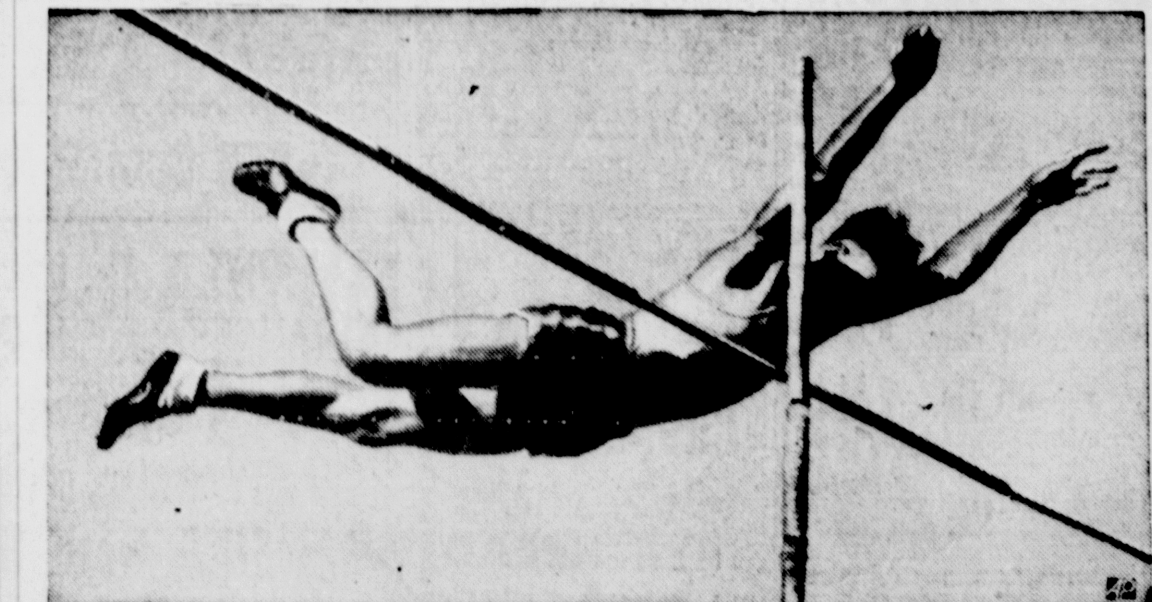

County Clerk Robert A. Snyder when asked Wednesday regarding what percentage of the sportsmen were taking out the new fishing license for $1.65 and how many were still taking out the combination hunting and fishing license for $2.25, delved into his records and found that despite the fact that the hunting season is still in the offing and the fishing season is here about half of the people taking out licenses were now buying the combination license although it will be full before the hunting license may be of any use. There have been very few hunting licenses taken out. The hunting license calls for a $1.65 fee as does the fishing license. A resident trapping license now costs $1.25. There is also a special resident deer license costing $2.50.

For years there was no division between hunting and fishing licenses, only a combination license which also allowed the holder to trap, was issued. Effective January 1, 1940, the law permitted taking out separate hunting, fishing and trapping licenses in addition to the combination license for hunting and fishing.

Following is the new schedule of license costs:
Resident citizen hunting, $1.65
Resident citizen fishing, $1.65
Resident citizen combination hunting and fishing, $2.25
Resident citizen trapping, $1.25
(Persons who are citizens and who have been legal residents of the state for six months or longer shall pay the license fees listed immediately above.)
Non-resident citizen combination hunting and fishing, $10.50
Non-resident citizen fishing, $5.50
Non-resident citizen three-day fishing, $2.75
Non-resident citizen trapping, $2.50.

Want to be a big league catcher, son? Get a job hauling ice. That's how Harry Danning, the great catcher of the New York Giants, developed those back muscles that made him a power-hitter and, according to his manager, Bill Terry, "the best low-ball catcher since Frank Snyder." At the age of 13, Harry got a job on an ice-wagon and for several years after school hours his work consisted of tossing 50-pound lumps of frozen water into Los Angeles ice boxes.

Boosters Of Post-Grad Athletics Hail Warmerdams 15-Foot Pole Vault

Here's Warmerdam going over the bar at 15 feet—once believed impossible.

San Francisco—The growing body of athletes-who-don't-know-when-to-quit saw their stock take a big jump when Cornelius Warmerdam, a staid old schoolmaster of 24, recently set a new world record for the pole vault.
Warmerdam has been out of college three years and some of the youngsters—and coaches as well—think such a patriarch shouldn't try anything more strenuous than to toddle over and sit down by the fire.
But Warmerdam changed from bedroom slippers to spiked shoes, came down to the University of California from his little mountain town of Tuolumne, and proceeded to vault an even 15 feet. For years

Monarchs Seem Set for the Title In ABC Tourney

Detroit, May 2 (AP)—The dopsters are ready to close their books at the American Bowling Congress tournament, confident that nothing short of a miracle can knock the Chicago Monarchs out of the 1940 team championship.

The last major contenders for the title, the Detroit Stros, folded completely under pressure last night and failed even to make a dent in the list of leaders. An estimated 6,000 fans jammed the Coliseum to watch the local favorites perform, thereby contributing to a case of the A.B.C. jitters which held the former champions to games of 912, 956 and 964.

The Stros encountered 14 splits and were charged with seven errors. Their 2,832 total fell more than 200 pins short of the Monarchs' score of 3,047 which is expected to win top prize of $1,500.

Cass Grygier, anchor man for the Stros, was the only member of the team to pass the 600 mark. He hit 611 on games of 187, 202 and 222.

Of the original entry list of 6,072 teams, 386 have yet to roll, but none of them is considered a likely bet to finish among the top ten. "Unknowns" have contributed some of the highest scores of the tournament, however, and until the final ball rolls down the drives next Tuesday anything may happen.

Ike Pearson, A. B. from the U. of Mississippi, brought his brain with him when he joined the Phillies last summer. Summoned from the bull-pen for his National League debut, he found a Chicago Cub on first base and a slugger at bat. Quickly sizing up the situation, he turned and threw to first base, catching the base-runner napping for the third out, thus retiring the side without pitching to the batter.

Duckpin League Meets Tonight

Officers will be elected and business discussed for the approaching season by the Duckpin League, tonight, at Central Recreation bowling alleys. Starting time of the meeting is 8 o'clock.

Those interested may sign for competition in the league by contacting Gil Sampson at the alleys or by phoning him at 1326.

Glen Stewart started life as a catcher, played every infield position for Jersey City last year, set a new International League pin-hitting record of 500, and shapes up as about the most useful rookie in the ranks of the New York Giants. They call him "Gaby" because he can keep quiet longer around a conversation than any man on the Giants' active playing roster.

(By The Associated Press)
The real test of the Brooklyn Dodgers will start today.

This isn't as ridiculous as it may sound, because an era in the lives of the darling Dodgers has just been completed—a miraculous era of nine consecutive victories climaxed by a no-hitter—and today they are just another strong contender in the National League.

Everyone knew, of course, the Dodgers would lose a game sooner or later (or just sooner) and everyone knows now that they will lose a lot more over the long, arduous stretch of the season. The important question—the real test—is whether they show the same proclivity for losing streaks they have for winning.

Now that they are out of the stratosphere of the record books and bucking their way along the National League's main street, the Dodgers are going to find that baseball after all is a rough and tumble pastime and not a motion picture.

The awakening—beaten 9-2 by Cincinnati—certainly was rude enough to shake any day dream that may have afflicted the Brooklynites. Hugh Casey was going along pitching a no-hitter for three innings and the writers were wondering what superlatives they could say about a second no-hitter that they hadn't used the day before for Tex Carleton's remarkable exploit.

Rapid Fire Scoring
Then it was boom-boom-boom-boom so fast in the fourth inning Manager Leo Durocher didn't have a chance to get Casey off the mound before the Reds had made six hits and scored eight runs.

Bill Werber and Ernie Lombardi were the big booms. Werber started all the trouble in the fourth by leading off with a double and finished it with a home run on his second chance in the same inning. Then in the seventh he got in the way of a pitched ball and eventually scored from second on a single. Lombardi homered while the bases were jammed in the midst of the fourth.

In the meantime Bucky Walters held the Dodgers to six hits—one of them Pete Coscarart's third home run of the season—for this third victory without defeat.

The Reds and Dodgers had another date today and since only two games now separate them in the standings, more fireworks were possible.

Nats Rained Out
The rest of the National League was rained out yesterday, but the American had a full day.

The New York Yankees got back in the groove with a well-pitched five-hit game by Monte Pearson giving them a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

The Philadelphia Athletics stopped the Cleveland Indians, 5-1, on the effective seven-hit hurling of Nelson Potter, with Wally Moses and Bob Johnson lending helping home run hands.

This setback enabled the Boston Red Sox to move back into a tie for first place with a 12-4 conquest of the Chicago White Sox. Boston benefitted from a 13-hit offensive led by Jimmie Foxx with his fifth home run, the notable relief pitching of Rookie Herb Hash, who allowed one hit in five innings.

The Washington Senators gave away a 10-7 game to the Detroit Tigers, who made four errors in trying not to accept the generous gesture. But Washington's four pitchers prevailed, giving 15 walks and 10 hits.

Hurlers Hold Key to Red Sox Hopes

If these hurlers click the Boston Red Sox may beat out the Yankees this season. Joe Cronin's club can match the power of the McCarthy gang but weak pitching has kept the Sox from challenging seriously. Here the veteran Lefty Grove shows three of Cronin's rookies how he grips the ball. The twirlers are Wilburn Butland (left), Grove, Herb Hash and Mickey Harris.

New Heavyweight Contender Was Auto Washer A Year Ago

Walker at work on his extra-curricular job—acting as fight night drum major for the negro American Legion drum and bugle corps at Columbus.

(AP) Feature Service

Columbus, O.—A year ago Jack (Buddy) Walker, 194-pound negro, was washing automobiles for a living and missing plenty of meals. Today he is unbeaten in 18 fights, some against pretty fair fighters, and is aiming for the heights.

His story has a rags to riches tang.

On April 3, 1939, a preliminary heavyweight ran out on matchmaker "Whitey" Morrett of Columbus and "Whitey" started a last-minute search for a substitute.

In the crowd outside, unable to buy a ticket, was Walker, he had never had a boxing glove on his big hands, but when Morrett offered him $5 for a four-rounder he snatched it. He was clumsy, but he kayaked his foe, George Kirsch of Akron, in the third.

That show drew a "gross" of $40. In his next two fights, Walker scored one-round knockouts over Oscar Toles of Youngstown and Jack Lowe of San Francisco. His cut for the three knockouts added up to $15.

Up He Goes

Then Morrett moved him into six-rounders and boosted his pay to $10 per scrap. The box office was responding to the thud of Walker's fists. Walker won by knockouts over Ed (Tipperary) Murray of Shelby, O., in two rounds, over Tommy Carter of Detroit in five, over Bob Thomas of Lockland, O., in five, and over Young Harry Wills of Cincinnati in six.

After his seventh straight knockout, Walker moved into the main events. He won 10-round decisions over Paul Favors of Detroit and Charley Belanger of Canada, but used the kayo method on Floyd Gibbons of Detroit in six, "Smoky" Maggard of Dayton, Ky., in three, and "Wild Bill" Boyd, Jack Dempsey's protege, in eight.

That made a total of 10 knockouts and two decisions in nine months.

Anybody Could Ride Bimelech

Louisville, Ky., May 2 (AP)—An ex-cowhand from Wyoming who first learned to ride in rodeo relay races has the momentous job of piloting favored Bimelech in the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

Jockey F. A. (Freddie) Smith, born in Cuba 26 years ago of an American father and a Cuban mother, has handled Col. E. R. Bradley's unbeaten ace in all of his eight triumphs. Naturally he thinks Bimelech is the greatest race horse in the world.

But he has more to do than just sit in the saddle and let Bimelech run.

"Bimelech is a very intelligent free-running colt," Freddie confided, "and almost anybody could ride him. He has one bad habit, if you would call it that. He is inclined to be playful and now and then I have to give him a good whack to keep him at his task."

Once, he recalled, Bimelech paused during a race to nip back at a horse that nipped at him.

British Runner Desires to Fly

London, May 2 (AP)—Sydney Charles Wooderson, 25-year-old British distance runner, resigned today from the wartime auxiliary fire service following a dispute over his request for additional leave for athletic training.

Wooderson said he now is registered for military service and wants to join the royal air force.

No Auto-Washing Now

Every scrap after Walker's first showed a gate increase and against Perroni Jack drew 9,987 fans. The three previous fights grossed more than $6,000 each. Walker has been reaping 25 per cent of the gross.

Color? The big fellow—He stands six feet one and weighs 194—has everything. He has scored three of his knockouts with his left hand, and the others with his right. He can take it, too—Simms knockdown and battled to a draw with Patsy Perroni of Canton, O., a fancy boxer.

Jack Dempsey refereed the Perroni scrap, and said he thought Walker had a slight edge despite the knockdown.

That made a total of 10 knockouts and two decisions in nine months.

Revised Version

With the sidelines loaded with such big shots as the DiMaggios, the Powsells, the Gomezes, etc., the philosophy of the major leagues this year would appear to be nothing ventured, nothing sprained.

This town is simply nuts over the Brooks...Headline in the World-Telegram: "Nuts to Everything—Hooray for Tex Carleton." What did Napoleon ever do that Dodgers can't?...Children of destiny threaten to run winning streak to at least 50...Everybody pokes a lot of fun at Durocher's dizzy crew, but one and all are for them 105 per cent...While Carleton was unveiling his no-hitter, announcer Red Barber refused to say anything about the Red hit totals at the end of each inning for fear of putting the whammy on Tex...The Dodgers doings will prevent Larry MacPhail (who once went after the Kaiser) from joining in the million dollar search for Hitler.

Tip to Tex

Skip your next turn, Tex; Remember that old hex: We all know you're not yella, But remember Bobby Feller. ERNST SUTTER, New London, Conn.

It Can Happen Here!

Daniel Baker College ran an ad in an Indianapolis paper for basketball players...Several Elkhart (Ind.) players responded, but on the way to Brownwood, Tex., they became detoured and wound up at Howard Payne College in the same town...The ball game between Greenwich and Fairfield (Conn.) had to be postponed when Greenwich requested an additional four months for practice...Nothing interferes with baseball down in Clarksdale, Miss...The municipal election was postponed a week because it conflicted with the opener and last week they called off a big political rally so all hands could turn out for the first night game.

Today's Guest Star

Nixon Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star: "I nominate for baseball's hall of fame Mr. James (Putt-Putt) Wright, late of San Quentin...Eligible for discharge on the morning of San Quentin's big game with the Sacramento Senators, Putt-Putt remained over, or rather in, to sub for the regular San Quentin shortstop, who became ill and was unable to play."

4-Star Thriller

"Tex Carleton Rides Again."

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Boston—Maurice Tillet, France, threw Jim Casey, Ireland, (12:03).

New York, May 2 (AP)—Never in the long history of horse racing in New York state has the sport commanded such attention as it has since Jamaica ushered in the mutuels betting system April 15.

Even the devastating dash of the Dodgers couldn't crowd racing off the sports pages.

Business at the track has been so amazingly successful that it might be well to have a look at what the new order is doing for stately old Jamaica.

An unofficial estimate, based on the volume of business done to date, is that the Jamaica track's net profit will average close to $20,000 a day. Here's how that figure is reached:

At the close of yesterday's racing the total amount of money wagered was $8,461,111, a daily average of $564,074 for the 15 days. Attendance was 187,130 or 12,475 a day.

Using the daily average handle, the track's share of the money wagered, with five per cent plus breakage, would amount to approximately $31,000 a day.

Expenses $30,000

The daily "nut," or total expenses of the track, has been estimated at from $25,000 to $35,000 a day. Strike an average and call it $30,000 and the income from the mutuels would take care of the daily operating cost.

Which leaves all the gate receipts and concessions as profit. Gate receipts on week-days average about $15,000 while on Saturday the amount doubles. That makes a daily average for the six days of about $17,500, plus income from the concessions—and the $20,000 figure for the track's net profit is arrived at.

Big Increase

The first 15 days at Jamaica showed an increase of attendance over last year of about 60 per cent, although the paid attendance for the first two weeks was some $7,000 under that for 1939. That is explained by a lowering of admission prices. The grandstand fee dropped from $2.50 to $1.50.

The raising yesterday of the minimum purse from $1,000 to $1,500, much to the joy of horsemen, was the surest indicator that the track is enjoying financial success.

What the story will be at swanky Belmont, which opens soon, is not known. But it's safe to bet the story will be told in even bigger figures.

Big as life and twice as handsome, the World's Fair of 1940 in New York is a thrill that comes once in a lifetime, a show never to be reproduced, and a memory to be enjoyed forever.

Remodelled Grand Union Market Opens

Freeman Photo

The modern streamlined effect is carried out in all departments of the Grand Union Food Market at 292 Wall street, since completion of its renovations. The new market is equipped to carry a complete line of groceries, meats, sea foods and fresh vegetables and fruits. A new delivery car is available for delivery service and the rear room of the market is virtually a food store in itself, for here is stocked a representative line of merchandise to facilitate the selection and completion of telephone and delivery orders. George Fleming is manager of the grocery department and Olin Deyo heads the meat department, and each is assisted by an efficient staff of clerks.

More Interest in Old Age Insurance

The amendments to the social security program which bring benefits to survivors of workers as well as to wage earners reaching the age of 65 have increased the public interest in the old age and survivors insurance program, it was announced today by Charles E. Burke, field manager of Kingston field office of the social security board. This has been evidenced in the sharp increase in the number of requests sent to the social security board's Baltimore office for a statement of 1938 recorded earnings, he added.

A total of 60,694 requests were received by the board in January, in contrast to 36,790 received in December, 1939. The amendments to the social security program went into effect January 1, 1940. A grand total of 182,406 requests have been received since July 20, 1939, the earliest date that the 1938 statements were available. Workers may secure statements of wages credited to their old age and survivors insurance account for the years 1937 and 1938 by writing to the Social Security Board, Candler Building, Baltimore, Maryland. Cards for this purpose may be secured at this office, Mr. Burke added.

Gospel Meeting

The monthly gospel fellowship meeting will be held at the Eagle's Nest, home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Huthstainer, Friday, May 3. All are welcome.

The New Jersey State Planning Board urges development of the Delaware and Raritan Canal right-of-way as a parkway across the state, to be used as an alternate for Routes 25 and 26 by light, fast traffic. Such a parkway would follow the Raritan and Millstone rivers, pass Rutgers and Princeton Universities, as well as some of the state's most historic spots.

Catholic Church In the East Bronx

A new $600,000 Catholic church and parochial school, at the southwest corner of Olmstead and Benedict avenues, will serve the Parkchester section of the East Bronx under the title of the Church of St. Helena, it was announced today by Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York. Ground will be broken for the new edifice this summer.

Located on the immediate borders of the Parkchester development, the new church is planned to provide for an expected increase in the Catholic population of that section, due to the new $50,000,000 housing project on the site of the old Catholic Protectors.

The first units of Parkchester development are now occupied and it is expected ultimately the project will provide housing for 50,000 people.

Mrs. Weeks was born in St. Augustine in 1827. Menfolk of her family went off to four wars in her lifetime.

Ciano Says Italy Respects Slaves

Rome, May 2 (P)—Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano today assured United States Ambassador William Phillips that Yugoslavia, Italy's neighbor on the Adriatic, was safe from Italian invasion, it was reported in usually reliable quarters.

The United States ambassador's talks with Premier Mussolini yesterday and with Ciano today noticeably eased tension in diplomatic circles.

Anxiety had reached an acute point with the announcement that British shipping had been diverted from the Mediterranean as a precaution.

Phillips' visit to Ciano was his second in two days. The ambassador called at the foreign ministry yesterday after seeing Mussolini and, it is said, received assurances from Il Duce that Italy did not plan any war move for the present.

Although nothing was made known at the American embassy, it was said in political circles that Germany wanted to keep all Balkan countries, including Yugoslavia, at peace as sources of supply for the Nazis.

It was explained that Italy, as an ally of Germany, would adhere to this policy which she has followed since the outbreak of the war. Yugoslav circles were said to feel reassured and allied circles also showed signs of an easier attitude.

Apple Blossom Festival Deserves Support of All

41 N. Front St., Kingston, N. Y., May 1, 1940.

Dear Editor:

Your editorial in this evening's Freeman is most appropriate both as an answer to the item in our neighboring city's Eagle News and as a statement of why Ulster County and the Hudson Valley should be very much interested in supporting the Hudson Valley Apple Blossom Festival.

There are many other reasons why the festival is of value and why we should do everything we can to publicize it. The Kingston "Y" Chatter comments on why it published its first issue a couple of weeks ago, saying, "The light under a bushel" and the "better mouse trap" stories prompt us to tell you what's being done here and why we want a path beaten to our door." That's the end of the quotation. Ulster county and the Hudson Valley have been "hiding their light under a bushel" and we've got such "good mouse traps" here that we think there should naturally be a path beaten to our door... but if no one knows anything about our scenery, our climate (perhaps the less said about that though for the moment), our business sites, our transportation facilities, our historical settings, our sports region, our neighborliness, or our many other assets that we are keeping to ourselves, how do we expect anyone to come here and use them?

These assets have been here for many, many years and the only way to get a path "beaten to our door" is by advertising, and the Apple Blossom Festival is one of the ways to do it.

For some time, far sighted citizens of this county and the Hudson Valley have been looking for the proper medium to promote such advertising, and as you know, about three years ago, through Howard Lewis, Hollister Sturges, J. R. Heisler, Mayor Raymond Gross, Dick Gruver, Henry Bright, Al Kurdt and yourself, believed that if at one certain time in the year, everyone could get behind a common advertising program, spreading propaganda (that's a common word today and everyone knows what it means), propaganda about this section of what it has to offer, we might be able to call attention to our region, to make people interested in it and perhaps try it out. Sir Thomas Lipton, the famous tea Lipton, as a lad, put on a show with two fine hogs given him by his father. He cleaned, scrubbed and polished until the hogs took on a fine appearance. They were harnessed to a small, bright red wagon, on which were painted the words, "Go to Lipton's." Crowds of people followed the odd-looking conveyance until it stopped before a store painted in the same fiery color. It became the nucleus of that famous world-wide chain of stores. Well, here in Ulster county, we didn't go out with a red wagon drawn by hogs, although we did take a float to New York city in the rat race a year ago, you remember, to be in a parade that was reviewed by Mayor La Guardia and Grover Whelan, to help do a part of this job... instead the idea of the Apple Blossom Festival came into being and is now a third time reality. It was felt that there was a romance of the Apple Blossom that could be dramatized into something that would attract people to our county and the Hudson Valley. It was something very common to us all here, it symbolized the stirring of life in the spring, the time when everyone was getting out and beginning to think of outdoors, of vacations, of traveling... not just a sales talk for apples, that's only incidental... that's only as a result of all the rest. Too many have the mistaken idea that this is the only reason for the festival and that the apple growers are the prime movers, whereas in reality, every single person in this whole section can be enthusiastic about our many attractions and can find the Apple Blossom Festival an excuse for telling everyone everywhere all about it.

And Saturday, May 11, is the day chosen to call attention to our wares... that's Apple Blossom Day. Everyone can help, and there are tangible ways in which it can be done. There was once a farm, so the story goes, that was next to an ostrich ranch, and in this farm yard were the usual assortment of hens, and like other hens at times, they weren't producing what the rooster of the flock thought they ought, so one day he went over to the ostrich ranch and rolled back an ostrich egg. He called all the hens together and showed them the egg, then he cleared his throat once or twice, just to show his importance and said, "Now ladies, I ain't exactly complaining, but I just wanted to show what's being done in other places." As you recognized in your editorial, other places are getting ready to do things if we don't, but we're proving that we can do it. I've also found that in other places, and it must be true here, that if everyone had a chance to help, even a little bit on a project, they'd all feel fine when the results of their efforts began to be seen. The Festival Committee have available little publicity stickers or Apple Blossom seals that everyone can affix to their envelopes when they send out mail it gives them just such a chance to help spread the news of the Festival. These miniature billboards which have been used for the past two years go all over the country and, as has been the case many times in past years, have gone all over the world. There are also Festival Bumper Signs for the automobile user as just another way to carry the word about. There are Festival leaflets telling the story of the festival as you know, and their pictures of interesting points on both sides of the river which is represented by the four vehicular bridges are fine selling points for the festival and the Hudson Valley. These are some of the means by which everyone can tell the world that all roads lead to Kingston on May 11th and the results will be amazing.

Kingston name has been going about the country for some time through the use of the "Booster Emblems" which the Junior Chamber of Commerce distributed last summer. The service stations very public spiritedly bought these emblems and gave them to their customers. There were two kinds, one for local cars and one for guest cars from out of town and in this way the name of Kingston, Ulster County, New York has been travelling FREE all over the country. A smaller sticker of exactly the same design has been used by the business houses and the Mayor's office for use on mail. Advertising keeps the public informed and we want Ulster county and the Hudson Valley to be known from land's end to land's end. The Tourment of Roses in California doesn't just sell roses, it sells California... the Orange Festival in Florida doesn't just sell oranges, it sells Florida... and so, the Hudson Valley Apple Blossom Festival isn't just to sell apples, it is to sell Ulster County and the Hudson Valley to the vacationist, the home buyer, the business man, the manufacturer, the sightseer... to anyone who can use what we have, but they must see our light and know our mouse trap is the one they want. If we want to see industry come to our region, let's not blame the city government or the industrial committee if it seems slow in coming, rather let us each one spread the big noise about our community to the outside world. The apple blossom seals, the bumper signs, the festival leaflets, the booster seals and the booster emblems are all available for use in spreading this worthy propaganda. Every piece of mail we send, every mile we cover with our car can be used to tell about our "better mouse traps" and there will eventually be a wide path beaten to OUR door... but we'll have to tell 'em to sell 'em.

The Freeman has been doing a swell job in covering all the angles of this big annual event and the public locally is becoming wide awake to the fact of the festival through your columns. As a member of the advertising committee of the Ulster County Council and the seal committee of the Apple Blossom Festival I am very deeply interested in these promotional events. As just a citizen of the community I again commend your editorial this evening and hope to see more of them.

Very truly yours,
WARREN F. SMITH.

Freer Transfers To Port Jervis

EUGENE A. FREER

Eugene A. Freer of 355 Albany avenue, sales representative of the Socony Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., in the territory comprising Kingston, Saugerties and Highland, has been transferred to Port Jervis. Mr. Freer has seen 21 years of service in the gasoline and oil business, having entered it after his discharge from the army at the end of the World War. His first job was as stenographer in the Kingston office for five years. He was transferred to Hudson where he spent six years and from there came back to Kingston for 10 years to act as sales representative.

"I've made many desirable friendships as a representative of Socony," he said this morning, expressing regret at having to leave Ulster county.

Not alone was Mr. Freer popular among his business clientele, but in the social and fraternal life of Kingston. He is a past commander of Kingston Post, American Legion, served as mobilization chairman and helped form the Boy Scout troop. He is a Kiwanian and served on the Industrial Committee during the period that body raised $4,800 for the promotion of Kingston. While in the city Mr. Freer, attended St. James Methodist Church.

Business associates and friends of Mr. Freer feel that his departure will mean a loss to Kingston but a gain for Port Jervis and wish him success and happiness in his new territory.
